

Stone Sculpting Workshop with Jason Quigno

Every Wednesday and Thursday

at 7th Generation

7957 E. Remus Rd., Mt. Pleasant, MI 48858

July 5 - August 10
Wednesdays 4-8pm
Thursdays 3-8pm

From Mt. Pleasant MI, born 1975 in Alma MI, is a Saginaw Chippewa tribal member. Sculptor Jason Quigno works in various types of stone ranging from very hard granite to soft soapstone. From these materials he creates simple flowing organic forms, many pieces represent the stories of the Anishinaabek People. Telling the stories of the Anishinaabek is one of Jason's main missions as a sculptor, he believes it is very important to put the stories into stone so they will be here for hundreds and thousands of years from now.

Jason has won many awards for his work and is part of many public and private collections around the country. At the age of 14 Jason took a sculpture class in 1994 with Dennis Christy and Dan Mena then moved on as Dan Mena's apprentice for a couple years. Currently living in Grand Rapids MI where his studio, Asinaabe Studios, is located Jason is working on 3 monumental projects for upcoming exhibitions later this year.

Anishinaabe Arts & Crafts and Emerging Entrepreneur Grant

Registration is required. Space is Limited. Must be 18 years or older. To register contact Shuna Stevens at (989) 775-4123 or sstevens@sagchip.org