Storyteller:
Jordan Mowat

Jordan Mowat is a Michi Saagiig Ojibwe Powwow & Round Dance singer/composer as well as a contemporary music artist from Alderville First Nation, ON, Canada.

He has travelled extensively across Turtle Island on the powwow trail and currently sings with notable drum group Bear Creek Singers. Amongst his travels he has also been able to share and perform his acoustic music for a wide range of audiences. Both traditional and contemporary music is filled in his home, especially for his children.

Aside from his musical journey and cultural experiences, Jordan is also an Indigenous Graduation Coach with the Nipissing-Parry Sound Catholic District School Board. Through advocacy; mentorship, academic, and mental health support, his goal is to help Indigenous youth realize their full potential - that they have a purpose - and to always be proud of who they are. When he's not helping others, he is exercising his mind, body, and spirit through physical wellness.
