

The Tribal Court Of The Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe Of Michigan

We're reopening June 8, 2020.

As the court prepares to open, court employees will continue to work remotely as much as possible. The frequency and use of remote hearings will continue for the first few weeks. Following that hearings will resume in the courtroom and will be limited to litigants and their attorney's. Anyone with a previously scheduled hearing or pending court matter will receive notice, via the US mail, regarding future hearing dates. Any and all documents that need to be filed with the court must have an appointment before entering the building. Please call 775-4800 to request a meeting.

Zoom Hearings

For all parties, who receive a notice to appear for a proceeding via Zoom video conference technology, it is important to understand that the court is not able to provide you with technical assistance, nor time to test and/or troubleshoot technical issues. Parties are advised to please take the time, before a scheduled court date, to test your device, gain familiarity with the platform, and insure that your connection is adequate. If you are not able to use Zoom video, you may appear by phone, the information is provided on your notice to appear.

Walk-in service

All members of the public are required to wear a face mask or face covering upon entering the courthouse, to the extent that it is medically tolerable. Social distancing protocols have been implemented and will also be required for all persons to follow upon entering the public safety building. Also, a security checkpoint has been implemented with a mandatory temperature check and questionnaire to be completed in order to gain entrance.
