

Among the Anishnaabeg, wolves are considered a sacred animal because they share a part in our traditional story as our brothers. A newly approved wolf hunting season will commence on November 15th, 2013. Many Michigan wolves will be hunted on this day due to a change of laws that once protected our brothers.

Join supporters of Wolf Protection at the SCA School Lodge on November 14th, 2013 (the eve before the wolf hunt opens) for a candle light vigil and sacred fire. Let us at least share our brother's story and offer semaa (tobacco) before ma'iiganag (wolves) are senselessly slaughtered again.

"So, Original Man and Ma-en'-gun walked the Earth and came to know all of her. In this journey they became very close to each other. They became like brothers. In their closeness they realized that they were brothers to all of the Creation." - The Mishomis Book

"What shall happen to one of you will also happen to the other. Each of you will be feared, respected and misunderstood by the people that will later join you on this Earth.

And so Ma-en'-gun and Original Man set off on their different journeys." -The Mishomis Book
