Ribbon cutting ceremony, free concert marks opening of Island Park Arts Pavilion provides a venue for local citizens of all ages to perform, and enjoy a myriad of events close to home."

Potential pavilion events include: concerts, theater and dance performances, art exhibits, ceremonies, public speeches, holiday celebrations, auctions, reunions, weddings and more, Idema said.

To complete the project, more than $200,000 was raised in grants, including major funds from the Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe's 2 percent distribution.

Additional grants came from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, and donations from: Morey Foundation, W.E. Martin Fund of the Mt. Pleasant Area Community Foundation, Isabella Bank, Rotary Club of Mt. Pleasant, Isabella Community Credit Union, Doug and Melissa LaBelle Family Foundation, Mercantile Bank of Michigan, City of Mt. Pleasant Parks Partnership Fund, United Way of Gratiot & Isabella Counties, Mt. Pleasant Jaycees and Mt. Pleasant Agency, Inc. – Central Insurance.

An amphitheater in Island Park in Mount Pleasant had been in the works for years, and on Monday, Aug. 5 it came to fruition as a ribbon cutting ceremony was held to open the Island Park Arts Pavilion.

The Island Park Arts Pavilion, located near Timbertown 2.0, was a vision by Taylor Idema, a 2019 Mt. Pleasant High School graduate.

The project became the result of Idema's Girl Scout Gold Award Project, the highest honor a Girl Scout can earn.

Idema pitched the arts pavilion idea at the United Way's Pitch-Er event and won first place honors along with the $5,000 seed money to launch the project.

"Mt. Pleasant is an active community with many talented citizens interested in not only attending fine arts events, but performing in them as well," Idema said in a media release. "The Island Park Arts Pavilion

"Our community has rallied around this project. Because of that generosity, audiences for years will come to enjoy a wide variety of performances in this picturesque setting," said Mt. Pleasant Mayor Will Joseph at the Monday evening event.

A short program began at 6 p.m. Tribal Council members – Treasurer Craig Graveratte and Sergeant-at-Arms Kenny Sprague – joined Idema and City officials underneath the pavilion to assist with the ribbon cutting.

"It was an honor to be included in the ribbon cutting of the new pavilion," Graveratte said. "This is one of many examples how several different entities can come together and support such a wonderful community effort. All the hard work and dedication it takes to see a project from an idea on paper, to moving dirt and being able to see the completed project, is a win-win for the whole community."

Onion Creek drummers were also present to perform an honor song.

More than 100 local residents were in attendance by 6:30 p.m. to catch the inaugural concert by Jim McKeith, a one-man acoustic rock band, sponsored by the Mt. Pleasant Area Convention and Visitors Bureau.

The Central Michigan Area Concert Band performed at 7:15 p.m.

Chris Bundy, director for Mt. Pleasant Parks and Public Spaces, took on the project to help make Idema's vision a reality.

"I've enjoyed working on the project with such a promising young person... who came to us with a great idea and the willingness to put in the work to make it a reality," Bundy said about Idema, to those in attendance.

"I am very thankful for his guidance throughout this project," Idema said of Bundy.

Soaring Eagle employees honored for 20 and more years of service

LOUANNA BRUNER

Tribal Council Member

Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort celebrated its first-ever employee recognition banquet honoring associates that have worked 20-plus years. There were 333 associates who achieved this milestone.

Kelly Bryant, executive administrative assistant to the CEO's office, planned this event – held on Thursday, Aug. 1 from 5:30 to 9 p.m. in the Soaring Eagle Entertainment Hall – in its entirety; paying attention to every detail needed.

Soaring Eagle's very own Woodshop crew, Dave Salisbury, Ernie Fletcher and Dan Ryckman designed, created and completed eagle plaques for all of the recipients.

Bryant selected ILuminate, a neon dance group who is

Monday and Wednesday events throughout the summer offered lunch, crafting

NATALIE SHATTUCK

Editor

During each Monday in the summer from June 24 to Aug. 26, the Recreation Department hosted enjoyable lunch events.

From 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. each Monday in and near the Eagles Nest Tribal Gym, lunch and craft supplies were provided.

The events, named Monday Summer Lunch Fun, were open to ages 10 and up and participants were welcome to bring their craft ideas, stories and favorite recipes.

The Monday lunches were hosted by the Recreation Department's Alice Jo Ricketts, youth and family recreation specialist, and Betsey Alonzo, organized sports specialist.

Hosted on Wednesdays throughout the summer – from May 22 to Aug. 21 – was the Summer Beading Circle, with instruction by Carrie Carabell, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Saginaw Chippewa Tribal College's East Building, Classroom 6.

The events were similar to open houses in which participants could stop in and go as they please or stay the entire duration.

"The Recreation (Department) collaborated with SCTC's Summer Beading Circle to incorporate and make available a variety of craft materials so that participants can choose any craft of their choice," Alonzo said. "We have had participants paint Native-inspired art on a variety of size canvases as well as design and sew ribbon skirts, and even help repair some worn out treasures, like earrings and beaded hand bags."

Alonzo continued, "Some of the younger children chose to string pony beads for friendship bracelets while the teens and older participants often created birthday gifts like beaded earrings, medallions, lanyards, key chains, and acrylic paintings."

In an email Alonzo sent out on Monday, Aug. 12 to the Tribal community, she said enchiladas, beans, rice, buffalo chicken dip, chips and banana pudding would be available for lunch that day.

On Aug. 5, Alonzo said, in another email, a lunch of pizza, breadsticks, cheese bread and cupcakes would be provided.

"Food is a big part of the Monday lunch fun; sharing a meal is a good way to bring us all together," Alonzo said.

Alonzo said it is hopeful the Recreation Department will continue to host the events each summer, with the continued collaboration of SCTC's Extension Program.

Backed by members of Congress, MMIW billboard campaign arrives in Michigan

GLOBAL INDIGENOUS COUNCIL

Little River Band Reservation, Mich. — A national campaign to raise awareness and build momentum for meaningful federal legislation to impact the Murdered and Missing Indigenous Women (MMIW) tragedy arrived in the Great Lakes on Friday, Aug. 2.

Backed by members of the U.S. House and Senate as diverse as Congresswoman Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez (D-NY) and Senator Steve Daines (R-MT), the region's first MMIW billboard was placed in Manistee, Mich., territory of the Little River Band of Ottawa Indians.

"The Native Justice Coalition (NJC) has just launched our MMIWG2S (Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women, Girls, and Two-Spirits) Project," said Cecelia Rose LaPointe, executive director of the Michigan-based Native Justice Coalition. "There has been a growing movement across Canada for several years and now the

Rep. Deb Haaland (D-MN) poses with an advertisement from the MMIW billboard campaign.

Global Indigenous Council has started this national MMIW billboard campaign, which has been publicly supported by the first Native American women ever elected to Congress, Rep. Deb Haaland (D-MN) and Rep. Sharice Davids (D-KS). NJC is honored to partner and participate in this initiative."

The MMIW billboard campaign was conceived by the Global Indigenous Council in association with the Rocky Mountain Tribal Leaders Council and the Great Plains Tribal Chairman's Association, tribal organizations that represent every tribe in the Rocky Mountain and Great Plains BIA regions.

The billboards have appeared in states from Arizona to Montana, and reached the Great Lakes early last month.

LaPointe said the next billboard is scheduled to appear in Duluth, Minn.

"So far omitted from the raft of proposed MMIW legislation are measures to address the human trafficking 'tracks' that result in Native American women and minors being forced into sex-slavery on container ships between U.S. and Canadian waters," said Lynnette Grey Bull, vice president of the Global Indigenous Council. "Duluth, Minn., has long been a hub for this misery."

Grey Bull continued, "In the wake of the recent MMIW Inquiry findings in Canada, now would be an opportune time to include this in legislation. This is not a new development; it has been happening for decades, but nothing has been done. We aim to change that."

"This billboard campaign is one of the most important things that can be done for the MMIW epidemic, because without awareness there will be no change. People need to know that this has been happening for decades. This is a way to bring it to their attention," said Senator Jon Tester (D-MT), former chairman of the U.S. Senate Committee on Indian Affairs.

The GIC-RMTLC-GPTCA alliance worked with Senator Tester on his Studying the Missing and Murdered Indian Crisis Act.

Many of the recommendations petitioned for by the alliance have received bipartisan support on Capitol Hill and are reflected in MMIW bills introduced in the 116th Congress.

North Dakota's former-Senator, Heidi Heitkamp, the original sponsor of Savanna's Act, describes the MMIW billboard campaign as "one of the most powerful and important things" to undertake.

"This is a very important campaign and it will bring much needed awareness to the ongoing tragedy," said Senator Lisa Murkowski (R-AK), who has reintroduced Savanna's Act in the 116th Congress with Senator Catherine Cortez-Masto (D-NV).

"Our project addresses this ongoing violence and continued genocide that affects Native women, girls, and Two-Spirits across the U.S. and Canada," LaPointe said. "In May 2019, a 1,200 page report from Canada was released on the National Inquiry on Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls (MMIWG). It includes over 230 recommendations and concluded that the murder and disappearance of Indigenous women and girls is an ongoing genocide."

LaPointe said, "The NJC is starting with this first step to create awareness in our communities."

The tribal alliance intends to present Gov. Gretchen Whitmer with a draft executive order to implement as a starting point to impact the MMIW tragedy in the region.

Little Free Library joins the Isabella Reservation to provide free book-sharing opportunity

The world's largest book-sharing movement made its way to the Isabella Reservation when a Little Free Library was placed in front of Cardinal Pharmacy last month.

An official ribbon cutting ceremony was held on Tuesday, Aug. 13 onsite – outdoors off of Leaton Road – to commemorate the library, a small wooden box filled with books provided for the free book exchange.

The idea of the Little Free Library is to "take a book, return a book." They come in many shapes and sizes, with the most common being a small wooden box of books.

The box is weatherproof and will be accessible to readers each season, every day, 24/7.

Public Relations Manager Marcella Hadden welcomed a small group of community members attending the 3:30 p.m. ribbon cutting ceremony.

"In a world where there is so much technology; reading an actual paperback or hardcover book is becoming a rarity. However, there is nothing quite like the feel of turning an actual page," Hadden said. "The Little Free Library is a great addition to the Isabella Reservation and I'm sure will be received well by our community."

During the first couple weeks the little library became available, Tribal Librarian Anne Heidemann said she kept checking it and each time, it needed to be restocked with books.

"It is great the community is reading!" Heidemann said. "You can feel free to take a book or leave a book whenever you'd like. This continues our efforts to ensure that everyone in this literacy-rich community always has access to books wherever you go."

The Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe and its Tribal Libraries were awarded the Little Free Library Impact Program Grant which allowed the library to be added to the community, Heidemann said.

The Little Free Library will soon be decorated with artwork by Tribal Member Gilbert Williams.

"I'm excited to say that, soon, this Little Free Library will be painted with traditional floral designs so it will incorporate the culture in a good way," Heidemann said.

According to littlefreelibrary.org, Little Free Library book exchanges have a unique, personal touch. There is an understanding that real people are sharing their favorite books with their community; Little Libraries have been called 'mini-town squares.'

Little Free Library is a registered nonprofit organization that "inspires a love of reading, builds community and sparks creativity by fostering neighborhood book exchanges around the world" (littlefreelibrary.org).

According to the website, there are more than 90,000 registered Little Free Library book-sharing boxes in 91 countries worldwide.

Tribe holds private fundraiser for Congresswoman Deb Haaland

NATALIE SHATTUCK

Editor

During Rep. Deb Haaland's (D-NM 1st District) visit on the Reservation during Saginaw Chippewa Powwow week, the Tribe held a fundraiser in support of the congresswoman.

Rep. Haaland, a member of Pueblo of Laguna (New Mexico), is one of the first two Native American women elected to the U.S. Congress.

The reception was held at the Ziibiwing Center on Saturday, July 27 from 10:30 a.m. to noon, in between Rep. Haaland participating in the annual Freedom Walk and powwow grand entry.

The fundraiser was for Tribal Members only and to provide the opportunity to meet Haaland, show support, ask questions and enjoy a complimentary breakfast.

Tribal Council Secretary Frank J. Cloutier provided a welcome and introduced Haaland.

The congresswoman then took to the podium discussing what changes she plans to make in Congress, what her hopes are for the next election and answered a few questions.

Editorial: Natural Resource Commission informs on changes for upcoming deer season

CASEY SMITH

VP for the Natural Resource Commission (previously the Conservation Committee)

To all fellow hunters and members of our community:

Boozhoo. On behalf of the Natural Resource Commission (previously Conservation Committee), we are reaching out to the Membership to inform you about the changes we have made for the upcoming deer hunting season.

From Sept. 1 through Oct. 31, our shared properties will be bow hunting only.

From Nov. 1 to Feb. 1, certain areas (most areas) will be open to gun season (new maps available at the SCIT Planning Department.)

There has never been consistency since we, as a Tribe, have started our own rules and regulations.

Every year, maps change on what properties we can hunt and hunt with (gun or bow). This is confusing and frustrating to us hunters not being able to hunt our own land first and for most.

Then year after year, some places hunters have previously been able to hunt with guns become bow-only the following year.

We are here to present consistency with equal rights to each and every member of this Tribe. Hunting and gathering is the biggest part of our culture.

With Tribal Council's approval, these maps will be in place and stay the same until there will be a new commission and if they decide to make changes, then that will be on them.

This commission has a true passion for the people of our Tribe and being able to exercise our sovereignty on our tribal lands and the surrounding area (treaty lands/waters).

This new commission board is excited to bring wellness, education to our community, a seven generation-minded thinking people to conserve our land, animals, resources for the next generations of hunters and gathers of our Tribe to come.

Tribe announces membership in the Midwest Tribal Energy Resource Association

PUBLIC RELATIONS DEPARTMENT

The Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe of Michigan is pleased to announce that it has joined the Midwest Tribal Energy Resource Association (MTERA). MTERA is a consortium of Midwest Tribes helping to increase tribal self-determination through energy independence, knowledge sharing, and collective action.

“The Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe has been fortunate enough to reach several energy independence milestones with the construction of our substation at our Saganing Reservation,” said Chief Ronald F. Ekdahl. “We look forward to participating in this organization by sharing our expertise and knowledge.”

The chief continued, “All tribes benefit when we work together to achieve our common goals of self-determination and exercise of sovereignty that help grow our communities.”

MTERA was formed in 2014 as an informal group of five Midwest Tribes who were passionate about energy issues. It has since grown and established a formal structure, obtained financing, and has identified opportunities to support Midwest Tribes’ energy initiatives.

More information about the organization is available at www.mtera.org

“As I mentioned during my Homecoming Community Meeting address, the electrical independence model that SCIT has created opens the door for future economic development projects in both Saganing and Mount Pleasant,” Ekdahl said. “We look forward to helping other tribes by sharing our experiences during this project and becoming a MISO market participant.”

Two Tribal Members complete two-year SECR Facilities Apprenticeship Program

NATALIE SHATTUCK

Editor

Two Tribal Members have successfully completed the two-year Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort Facilities Apprenticeship Program.

Stephanie Starkey is first to ever complete the Carpenter Apprenticeship Program and Glen Peter Coffin is the second to ever complete the Heavy Equipment Operator Apprenticeship Program. The apprenticeships are open to Tribal Members only.

Both the carpenter and heavy equipment program modules require at least 3900 hours of documented training.

Coffin completed his program on June 19, 2019, and Starkey completed her program on July 26, 2019.

Each program involves modules which include specific tasks identified with a matching amount of hours. For example, the carpentry program requires 500 hours of millwork – work that includes estimating material, cutting, planning, milling, routing and sanding wood.

After completing their apprenticeships, both Coffin and Starkey are required to stay with the Tribe for one year after. Following completion, apprentices may seek an opportunity to be hired full time if a position becomes vacant. Coffin is currently working as heavy equipment operator and

Tribal Members Glen Peter Coffin (left) and Stephanie Starkey (right) both completed the two-year Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort Facilities Apprenticeship Program. Coffin is one of two to ever complete the Heavy Equipment Operator Apprenticeship Program and finished in June 2019. Starkey is the first ever to complete the Carpenter Apprenticeship Program and finished in July 2019.

Starkey is currently a journeyman carpenter.

“They both went above and beyond for whatever tasks their apprenticeships called for,” said Dan Ryckman, carpenter supervisor, about Coffin and Starkey.

Requirements in the carpentry program include: safety and lift training, furniture repair, finishing (staining), concrete work, table games repair (restoring roulette and blackjack tables) and much more.

(Starkey) does anything and everything. She is pretty well-rounded,” Ryckman said.

Starkey said her father Richard Starkey, a Tribal Member and Tribal Operations Maintenance Department employee, got her interested in carpentry work.

“My dad’s a carpenter,” Starkey said. “When I was growing up, he built anything and everything. He was just like a Mr. Fix It.”

Starkey has assisted with table games furniture, plaques and awards for several Tribal departments’ events, a bathroom remodel, Tribal Council’s new desks and chairs for their move into the Black Elk building, and much more.

“I’m the first one to complete the program, and I’m a woman; all the other people who were apprentices were men. So I feel kind of proud of that,” Starkey said.

Requirements in the heavy equipment program involve: safety, equipment maintenance, general labor (moving/lifting, hand digging, jack hammer, concrete saws), snow removal (plow trucks, wheel loaders, dump and salt trucks), using excavators and street sweepers, obtaining a State of Michigan Class A CDL License, and much more.

“I don’t mind the big dump trucks – carrying all the sand and soil that we need for all of the jobs. I’ve been doing that for three weeks in a row,” Coffin said. “I like getting in the different pieces of equipment.”

Coffin, who now drives more than 10 heavy equipment vehicles, said his position requires, “A lot of outdoor work, a lot of heat, a lot of freezing, cold temperatures, too.”

“When I first started, I never sat in one of those big trucks, ever... I know how to drive a stick shift but (I am driving vehicles with) eight gears now,” Coffin said.

Ryckman; John Curns, facilities project manager; and Brian Thomas, heavy equipment supervisor; sat down with the Tribal Observer and all agreed the SECR apprenticeship teaches much more than what individuals in the field would learn elsewhere.

“Brian and I have both been out in the field. You don’t get the variety, and you don’t get to learn as much as you do here (through the SECR apprenticeship),” Ryckman said. “What (the apprentices) learn here, in a very short period of time, in basically two years, I would say, is 10 times what (others) learn in the field.”

Thomas said the Woodshop has grown since he first began; much more new equipment has been added to the department.

Several directors and management who oversee the apprentice program have had past work experiences in the trades.

“SECR apprentices are trained, first hand, by someone that has actually done the job,” Curns said.

Ryckman describes the Woodshop team as “dynamite,” retaining various skills.

For Tribal Members interested in filling the recently vacated apprentice positions, an upcoming apprentice job fair will be held Sept. 26 in the Black Elk building in the Human Resources Training Room from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m.

“Tribal Members are welcome to come and ask questions about the job positions, what we do here and what they are expected to do,” Curns said. “They can put their application in at that time.”

Editorial: Chief Little Elks Memorial golf tournament saw 50 players

BERNIE SPRAGUE

Contributing Writer

The Chief Little Elks annual Memorial Golf Tournament was held Aug. 3 at Waabooz Run.

The golf tournament honors the lives of Eli Thomas, Betsy Thomas, Eleanor Sprague, Dan Eggleston, Dorson Strong, Phyllis Sprague, Shirley Chamberlin, Day Sprague, Jo Kathy Bennett Sprague, Rocky Sprague, Wayne Sprague and Gary Sprague.

The family of Chief Little Elk would like to thank the community for their support. We were able to raise enough funding needed to hold our annual event to honor Chief Little Elk and his extended family from the bake sales and 50/50 drawings.

This was the biggest turnout in the long history of the event; we had 25 teams for a total of 50 players.

The day started with coffee and Danishes for the early risers and staff. At 9 a.m., we prepped for the annual honor song. This year we added a celebration song and a traditional dancer (Cruz Perez).

The family would like to say many miigwetch’s to Frank Sprague (hand drum, singer) and Cruz Perez for their outstanding performances. They helped us remember Little Elk’s powwows at the campgrounds as he would use his hand drum and sing his traditional songs dressed in his traditional buckskin apparel.

At the end of the tournament, we had a traditional fry bread and bean soup meal prepared by the cooks at the Nbakade Family Restaurant. What a great meal it was. Nbakade also served us delicious breakfast burritos to get us thru the day.

We would like to thank all of the players and the staff at Waabooz Run and of course the family members that volunteered their time to make this event an enjoyable day.

We plan on expanding the traditional ceremony at 9 a.m., so if you have some free time, you are welcome to come out and join us, as it was Chief Little Elk’s belief: “We are all children of God and we are all welcome in his house.”

We would also like to thank our nieces Carla, Deb, Sue, Diane, Ashawnee and Brenda for their support and efforts.

Bernard, Ken, Larry, Bean and Barb Sprague would like to say miigwetch. Thank you for your support and participation.

The 2020 Memorial will be held Aug. 1 at Waabooz Run. The honor ceremony will be held at 9 a.m., followed by the tee off at 10 a.m.

Thirteen recruits graduate from the 2019 Tribal Police Youth Academy

HARRY AMBS

Chief of Police

The 2019 Tribal Police Youth Academy, held July 23-25, was a huge success. This year's academy saw 13 recruits graduate, with two of the recruits promoting to the rank of corporal.

Recruits took part in tours of the Saginaw Chippewa Tribal Police Department, Fire Department and Tribal Court. Judge Patrick Shannon addressed the recruits and took time to present information about Tribal Court and answer questions from the recruits.

The core training curriculum of the academy included the following:

Evidence collection: recruits learned how to lift fingerprints and processed a mini crime scene.

Emergency vehicle operation: recruits practiced driving techniques and used golf carts to traverse the same qualification course used by police officers.

Handgun and rifle qualification: recruits used training guns that fire a paint-based projectile to hone their marksmanship skills on a static range target and then tested those skills in a shoot course against zombies (targets).

First-aid: recruits learned basic medical treatments which they could apply in everyday situations.

Defensive tactics and physical skills: recruits learned basic control techniques used by police officers and physical fitness essentials to help them be able to complete the minimum fitness requirements necessary to become a police officer. Recruits were then able to try their luck in completion of the exact test used by entry level police recruits.

Out of each of the core categories, a "top performing" recruit was chosen based upon scoring and instructor observation. The "top performing" recruits were as follows:

Emergency Vehicle Operation (driving) – Jonathan Bailey

Sidekick Salute Award (positive attitude) – Mackenzie McMullen

Super Sleuth Award (evidence collection) – Katilyn Cantu

Top Gun Award (firearms) – Erius Mena

Dr. Do-Rite Award (first-aid) – Samuel Cloud

Physical Fitness Award (female) – Katie Robinson

Physical Fitness Award (male) – Richard Delacruz

Most Outstanding Recruit Award – Christopher Spencer-Ruiz

The Saginaw Chippewa Tribal Police Department would like to thank our community volunteers, Tahsheena Foley and Makayla Stevens. The two were instrumental this year with helping the recruits stay on track and assisting the police officers as they presented to the youth.

Also, a special thank you to the Soaring Eagle Waterpark for providing day pass prizes for our top performers and award winners.

People's Community Garden update at 7th Generation Elijah Elk Cultural Center

LEE ANN RUFFINO

Cultural Manager

Back in May of this year, Seventh Generation and the Saginaw Chippewa Tribal College Extension Program hosted a "How to Maintain a Garden Box" Lunch & Learn. After the informative gardening presentation, many community members signed up to grow their own vegetables in a garden box, on the 7th Generation property.

Throughout the past few months, the garden boxes have been flourishing beautifully. Stop in anytime, and harvest what you need from the community garden boxes. Open to all of the Saginaw Chippewa community.

June was the month of the Odemin Giizis or Strawberry

Moon. The strawberry field brought in many visitors this year, from youth to elder. Many of our community members have said that these strawberries were the best they have ever tasted.

Stay tuned for our next healthy, traditional cooking event, being held in November, in collaboration with Planning, Tribal College Extension and Tribal Library.

The four sacred medicines, Tobacco, Cedar, Sage and Sweetgrass are also grown at 7th Generation.

The Saginaw Chippewa community may come into the office and sign out medicines that they need.

If you would like more information, please call 989-775-4780.

Mnaajaada gda binooji-inhsminaanik! (Let's celebrate our babies!)

Seventh Generation hosted the summer Baby Celebration on Thursday, July 18 from 5:30 to 8 p.m.

The event featured wen-paaash miijim (free food); an Anishinaabemowin sing-a-long; a keepsake for the binoojiinhs, the waabowaanan (blanket), made by Sarah Little.

"Honoring the newest additions to our Saginaw Chippewa community is an exciting time," said Lee Ann Ruffino, cultural manager for Seventh Generation. "Every summer and winter, Seventh Generation, Nimkee Healthy Start, Anishinaabe Language Revitalization and Anishnaabeg Child and Family Services offer a meal,

Melissa Isaac named president of the Confederation of Michigan Tribal Education Directors

NATALIE SHATTUCK

Editor

Tribal Education Director Melissa Isaac was named giigdoninikwe (president) of the Confederation of Michigan Tribal Education Directors as the CMTED announced the July 2019 election results.

According to CMTED by-laws, "The officers of the CMTED shall be elected by the Confederation membership at their annual July meeting.

Isaac will serve a two-year term.

"I would like to say chi-miigwetch to my fellow Tribal Education directors for having confidence in me to lead this important work," Isaac said in a media release from the CMTED. "I look forward to continue increasing visibility of tribal voices in the area of education in Michigan with emphasis on success of all tribal students. Our effort will follow the path and guidance laid before us by our Anishinaabek ancestors."

Jordan Shananaquet, education director for the Little Traverse Bay Bands of Odawa Indians, will serve a one-year term as vice giigdoninikwe.

"Aanii Kina Gwaya, I am both humbled and honored to serve on the executive board as vice chair for CMTED," Shananaquet said in the media release. "Education is a direct articulation of sovereignty and it is important that we protect it. I look forward to the work that CMTED will do to ensure that our voices are heard in Michigan and the larger United States. Miigwech."

Andrea Rainer, higher education specialist for the Nottawaseppi Huron Band of the Potawatomi, was elected to serve a three-year term as zhibigeninikwe, and Jannan Cotto, education director for the Gun Lake Tribe, will serve a three-year term as zhoonyaninikwe.

Project AWARE begins second year of support and collaboration

NIKI HENRY

Curriculum Instructional Coordinator

As Project AWARE begins its second year of support and collaboration, the community is starting to experience its impact. The project, made possible by the five-year, $9 million grant awarded to the Tribe by the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA), focuses on meeting the mental health needs of school-aged youth and families in the area and helps connect them to services while also raising awareness of mental health needs.

To meet its goals, the Project AWARE team began working last year with the Saginaw Chippewa Academy, Mt. Pleasant Public Schools and Shepherd Public Schools, and it has also organized several community events.

"Project AWARE is so exciting, because it is a true partnership between the Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe, Mount Pleasant Public Schools and Shepherd Public Schools to better serve our youth," said Kehli Henry, AWARE Coordinator.

Project AWARE and its coordinators are photographed at several Tribal events including at the Saginaw Chippewa Academy (left) and the K-12 Back to School event on Aug. 12 (right).

Cinema and the community talking circle that followed was the event that kicked off the summer with the AWARE team on the evening of Sunday, June 9.

Next, Project AWARE partnered with Native Connections at Behavioral Health to host a gathering of Native American youth (GONA) at the Ziiibwing Cultural Center in July. On the first day, Tuesday, July 9, 54 youth from attended the event, and 58 participated on the second day, Wednesday, July 10.

Attendees of the 2019 NativeFest that took place at Ziiibwing on July 23 and 24 may have met some of the members of the AWARE team at the booth they had set up to offer brochures featuring an overview of the project. Additionally, Project AWARE helped sponsor a performance by Keith Secola and the Wild Band of Indians from 8 to 9 p.m. on Wednesday, July 24.

On July 23-24 and July 29-30, AWARE hosted a Technology of Participation (TOP) training focused on facilitation methods and action planning. A total of 35 participants attended from the Tribe, Shepherd Public Schools and Mount Pleasant Public Schools.

On Monday, Aug. 12, AWARE was present at the K-12 Back to School event, providing school supplies for Tribal students and handing out flyers and information for youth and parents.

The next evening, Aug. 13, AWARE was present at the Shepherd Public Schools Back to School Bash to again distribute brochures and information to students and parents alongside other informational booths focused on mental health, mentoring programs, clothing and food assistance programs and other services.

More than 800 participants attended the two separate sessions of the STARR Trauma Informed Resilient Schools Training that took place at the Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort on Aug. 21 and 22.

According to Henry, Trauma Informed Resilient Schools teaches school professionals how to create trauma-informed schools and classrooms.

The training focused on resilience, exploring the core values and beliefs of educators, and it addressed how trauma impacts children and their school experience. It also presented proactive strategies, such as fostering connections, prioritizing social and emotional skills, establishing safety and promoting play and provided detailed information and concrete actions that will help school professionals create the best classroom environment and establish effective school supports for traumatized students.

"We are working on some really innovative things to improve student experiences in school, and to expand the services available to support them," Henry said. "While we are still in the early stages of this project, we are looking forward to significant positive changes in the way we interact with our students and communities."

Upcoming AWARE events in September include the following: Youth Mental Health First Aid Instructor Training on Sept. 3-5, Support for Students Exposed to Trauma (SSET) training on Sept. 12 and 25, Bounce Back Training Sept. 13 and 26, and the First Responders Training: Mental Health 101 & Trauma Informed Responses on Sept. 17 and 18.

State of Michigan adopts new social studies standards

NIKI HENRY

Curriculum Instructional Coordinator

After five years of professional and political analysis, controversy, private and public discussion, and intense media attention, Michigan finally adopted new social studies standards this past June.

Tribal Education Director Melissa Isaac was involved in the process every step of the way since 2011 and provided significant input on the final version which includes an accurate and acceptable representation of Michigan's Indigenous peoples, both past and present.

Isaac was one of several Native Americans who served on committees formed by the Michigan Department of Education during the process of drafting the standards. She was granted this opportunity because federal law requires meaningful government-to-government consultation with Tribes according to Every Student Succeeds Act Section 111(a) and 8538.

"There is a lot of support for Indigenous people through ESSA," Isaac said, noting that State collaboration with tribes is helping to develop mutual respect.

"We need to provide input," she said about having a voice at the State's table. "It's a work in progress."

A document produced by the Confederation of Michigan Tribal Education Directors (CMTED), of which Isaac is a member, states, "Not only is it the law, it is generally considered sound management policy and the right way for the United States to conduct business." So, Michigan complied and offered seats at the table to designated officials, such as Isaac, who represent the 12 sovereign nations of Michigan.

Because of the unique political status of the tribes, CMTED holds the position that consultation with Tribal entities is a non-negotiable right and irrefutably required for decisions that result in possible or probable impact on Native students.

According to CMTED, "The Michigan Department of Education, Social Studies Task Force Chairs and State Board of Education must recognize the input being provided as government-to-government consultation rather than stakeholder group feedback."

Throughout the process of drafting the standards, CMTED representatives such as Isaac acted as advocates for the Tribe, addressed critical educational concerns and offered recommendations that encouraged the inclusion of indigenous content and the study of Tribal government. Additionally, they scrutinized terminology used in the standards to ensure updated and appropriate vocabulary was used within the document and that Indigenous contributions to the state throughout history were recognized.

Former standards referenced Native Tribes in a total of 24 standards. As a result of CMTED's consultation, this number was considerably increased. In fact, the CMTED team proposed recommended changes to 54 standards, 34 of which were applied and five partially applied. Of the recommendations that were not applied or partially applied to the standards, the CMTED team was able to accept the rationale of why they remained unchanged and endorse two of the standards, leaving only 13 of the 54 standards unendorsed by Native representatives.

Though these results are positive and acceptable, the process to get them was not easy.

According to Isaac, when representation was first requested by the state in 2011, there was only one representative present on the committee.

"That was me," Isaac said, explaining that the draft standards had already been written at that point and that MDE was consulting with a Tribal representative for the sole purpose of determining if something had been missed.

"It didn't go well the first time," Isaac said. Despite her input, she said, "The standards deleted us altogether, and I'm not sure how that happened. Indigenous history was not included. We had no representation in the standards."

After that, MDE released the standards for public comment. Isaac explained that this is when CMTED stepped in.

"We came together and issued a statement, asking people to speak up at public events and voice their concerns," Isaac said. "After those sessions and enough people advocating for us to be included, they (MDE) had to refigure their approach."

Isaac said MDE broke the standards into sections and asked Native representatives to apply for seats on the new content area committees that would address each section.

"CMTED was strategic," Isaac said. "Each representative applied for a different committee to make sure we had representation in every area, including the bias review committee that I was a part of."

This strategy worked, and the new standards are something Isaac can be proud to see her name associated with along with Jannan Cotto, MTED member from the Little Traverse Bay Band of Odawa Indians (LTBB); Amanda Weinart, LTBB curriculum specialist; Robin Lees, a retired social studies teacher from LTBB, Judy Pamp, assistant director of SCIT's Ziibiwing Center; and LTBB's Eric Hemenway.

SCA summer school students attend several fieldtrips

Saginaw Chippewa Academy's summer school students were able to add several adventures to their academic work during this year's session.

The group's first trip was to Mt. Pleasant Discovery Museum on Wednesday, July 17. Next, students visited the Delta College Planetarium in Bay City on Tuesday, July 23.

On Wednesday, July 31, summer school participants learned about chemical changes, physics and science during a hands-on demonstration from Dr. Slime, aka Michael Garlick.

Students explored Impression 5 Science Center in Lansing on Wednesday, Aug. 7, and on Wednesday, Aug. 14, they enjoyed a morning of learning at Central Michigan University's one-room schoolhouse.

Soaring Eagle welcomes country music rising stars Kane Brown and Gabby Barrett

MATTHEW WRIGHT

Staff Writer

Eager fans packed in to the Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort's outdoor concert venue on Friday, Aug. 16. Breakout country musicians Kane Brown and Gabby Barrett were in town, ready to perform a sold-out show.

Kane Brown has been one of the fastest rising stars in the country music genre, with his fresh mix of country, pop and rap elements.

The 25-year-old singer released his first, self-titled album in 2016. His second album "Experiment" released in November 2018.

Brown began with "Baby Come Back to Me" followed by his first No. 1 hit "What If's."

Next, he performed "Weekend" and the heartfelt melody "Used to Love You Sober," which was his first single released in October 2015.

Fans were treated to another No. 1 hit with "Good as You," followed by "Learning."

The melancholy ballad "Homesick" was followed by "Live Forever" and "Like a Rodeo."

The party vibes of "Short Skirt Weather" had audience members dancing and singing along.

Keeping the hits coming, he performed "Stand By Me,"

Kane Brown points out to the audience during the Aug. 16 outdoor concert at the Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort.

"One Thing Right," "Found You" and "Pull It Off."

Brown sent the audience home happy that night, ending in style with two more No. 1 hits in "Heaven" and "Lose It."

Opening for Brown was country musician Gabby Barrett.

Barrett's talents were first recognized on the hit TV series "American Idol" in 2018, where she finished third during the show's 16th season.

She thrilled fans with her original songs, including "Jesus and My Mama,"

"Rose and Jack," "Goldmine," "Fireflies," and "Good Ones."

Barrett covered a variety of country songs, including Shania Twain's "Man! I Feel Like a Woman," Carrie Underwood's "Cry Pretty," and the Dolly Parton classic "Jolene."

Not limited to country, she also covered Guns N' Roses' "Paradise City" and Miley Cyrus' "The Climb."

To close out, Barrett performed Journey's crowd-favorite classic song "Don't Stop Believin'" and her single, "I Hope."

Dwight Yoakam, Foghat perform during Beers, Brats & Burgers event at SECR

MATTHEW WRIGHT

Staff Writer

Patrons were treated to a delightful combination of live music, great food and craft beer during Beers, Brats & Burgers at the Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort. The Saturday, July 20 event was part of the Soaring Eagle Dine & Drink Series, and included the musical entertainment of Dwight Yoakam and Foghat.

The menu included brats, burgers and side dishes from top area restaurants. Two of Soaring Eagle's own restaurants participated: Isabella's served deviled poached eggs and fried potato salad, and the Siniikaung Steak & Chop House served a peach and almond parfait.

A variety of craft beer was available from local and national breweries. Samples from Atwater Brewery, Roak Brewing Co., New Holland Brewing, Shorts Brewing Co., Perrin Brewing Co. and more were on tap.

Country musician Dwight Yoakam performed some of his biggest hits including "Please, Please Baby," "I'll

Be Gone," "You're the One" and "Liar."

Mixed amongst songs from his over 30 year career, Yoakam played a variety of covers. This included Chuck Berry's "Little Queenie," Elvis Presley's "Little Sister," and Johnny Horton's "Honky Tonk Man."

He also covered a pair of Merle Haggard songs with

"Tonight the Bottle Let Me Down" and "The Fugitive."

To finish the night, he performed "Guitars, Cadillacs" and "Fast as You," followed by a cover of Mark James' hit song "Suspicious Minds."

English rock and roll band Foghat opened the night with the hit songs "Drivin' Wheel," "Road Fever" and "Stone Blue."

Tim McGraw brings 30 years of country music hits to Soaring Eagle's outdoor stage

NATALIE SHATTUCK

Editor

Because of his 30-year career span in country music, Tim McGraw draws fans of all ages to see him on tour all around the world.

Children, teenagers, adults and seniors fled to the Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort on Saturday, Aug. 10 to see the 'real good man' live during the outdoor summer concert.

At about 9:40 p.m., the band began playing an intro and then entered McGraw on stage with his fists in the air then he began beating his chest.

The band opened with the thumping "Truck Yeah," and followed with "Southern Voice," "All I Want Is a Life," "Something Like That" and "Shotgun Rider."

"Mount Pleasant! Good to see you again!" McGraw said. He last performed at Soaring Eagle in 2015 during another outdoor show.

"You cannot find a better technical band than these guys," McGraw said, paying homage to his fellow musicians sharing the stage with him.

The band then launched into "Where the Green Grass Grows" then "For a Little While."

"It's been about 30 years I've been paying rent by playing music," McGraw said, adding how grateful he is for his fans.

"This next song is one of my favorites I've ever recorded. It is our newest single... the times we live in, it is good to find a song we can reflect on," he said about "Thought About You," a heartfelt tune.

During "Felt Good on My Lips," McGraw made many audience members extremely happy when he jumped off stage and walked along a gated area, near the front and sides of the stage, to shake hands with and high-five fans.

performances of "I Like It, I Love It," and the ballads "Humble and Kind" and "Live Like You Were Dying."

McGraw and his band briefly left the stage only to reappear for an encore consisting of "Real Good Man" and "Indian Outlaw" to conclude his 75-minute set.

Country music singer-songwriter Devin Dawson performed prior to McGraw at about 8:30 until 9:10 p.m.

Dawson is quickly becoming a household name with several hits on the country music charts.

Dawson performed his songs: "All On Me," "Dark Horse," "I Don't Care Who Sees" and "Asking For a Friend."

"Every song tonight, I wrote. Every one of those songs is like a little piece of who I am," Dawson said.

Dawson also discussed writing a hit song for a major country music star.

"This has been the craziest six months of my life... had an opportunity to write a song for Blake Shelton," he said.

His song recorded by Shelton, "God's Country," is currently topping the country music charts.

"First night playing here. It is so beautiful! If I came back, would you come see me?" Dawson asked the audience, stirring applause and roars.

The evening's opening act, country musician Levi Hummon, performed a 30-minute set.

R&B legends Charlie Wilson and the Isley Brothers give memorable performances

MATTHEW WRIGHT

Staff Writer

The weather wasn't the only thing that was hot on July 19, as renowned R&B artists Charlie Wilson and the Isley Brothers combined for a memorable show at the Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort.

Headlining the night was R&B legend Charlie Wilson, known as "Uncle Charlie," a nickname given to him by rapper Snoop Dogg. Wilson has gained fame as both a member of The Gap Band and during his solo career.

Wilson has released 10 No. 1 hit singles and received 13 Grammy Award nominations.

He thrilled fans with many of those memorable hits including "Beautiful," "Good Times (Everybody)," "There Goes My Baby," "Charlie, Last Name Wilson" and "Party Over Here."

He performed "Chills" and "I'm Blessed" off his latest album, "In It to Win It," which was released in February 2017.

Wilson founded The Gap Band in the '70s, alongside his brothers Ronnie and Robert. He paid homage to this, while performing some of the band's biggest hits with "Party Train," "Early in the Morning" and "Burn Rubber (Why You Wanna Hurt Me)."

Opening for Charlie Wilson was R&B rock group The Isley Brothers.

The band began with "Fight the Power," "Who's That Lady" and "Between the Sheets."

The Isley Brothers also covered the hit Top Notes single "Twist and Shout" and "Joy and Pain" by Maze. A cover of "Summer Breeze" by Seals and Crofts was dedicated to the late artist Prince.

During the song "Smooth Sailin' Tonight," lead singer Ronald Isley pulled an audience member on stage to sing along into the microphone.

After nailing her part, a surprised Ronald Isley said, "You've been rehearsing!"

"All of my life," she replied.

Fan favorites "It's Your Thing," "You're All I Need" and "Shout" also proved to be highlights of the night.

Events held to celebrate American Indian Sobriety Month throughout August

NATALIE SHATTUCK

Editor

American Indian Sobriety Month (AISM) kicked off early this year on July 31 with Family Game Night from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m., held at Andahwod Continuing Care and Elders Services.

The Wednesday evening event provided dinner and family-oriented games and raffle drawings. The first 40 families received a board game to take home.

In addition to Andahwod, the event was made possible by Behavioral Health's Prevention team and Anishnaabeg Child & Family Services.

Other AISM events throughout August included the Aug. 7 Cupcake Wars, an Aug. 14 RezBall Tournament (the article is featured on page 9) and the Aug. 21 Family Fun Night.

Cupcake Wars were held on that Wednesday afternoon from 1 to 3 p.m. in the Eagles Nest Tribal Gym. Cupcakes and decorations were provided.

Awards were gifted for the most original cupcake in three categories with three age groups. The categories included: Native Pride (winners were Isabel, Ezekiel Haught, and Kaya Rose), favorite holiday (winners: Alex, Zachariah, and Levi), and Pure Michigan theme (winners: Noah Nedwash, Elizabeth, and MacKenzie McMullen.)

Cupcake Wars competitors gather around the Tribal Gym to hear the announcement of winners in each category on Aug. 7.

"Age groups were split as evenly as possible with the children who were present," said Shuna Stevens, prevention coordinator for Behavioral Health.

Behavioral Health's Lacie Kelly, business services coordinator, and Amy Campbell, clinical therapist, led the event.

The Wednesday Family Fun Night was held from 5:30 to 8 p.m. in the Broadway Park.

Children and their families could enjoy carnival games, kickball, a petting zoo and much more as DJ Lupe spun the tunes.

The event was co-sponsored by Behavioral Health,

Soaring Eagle hosts Midwest Alliance of Sovereign Tribes (MAST) summer meeting

NATALIE SHATTUCK

Editor

The Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe and its Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort hosted the Midwest Alliance of Sovereign Tribes (MAST) two-day summer meeting on July 18-19.

MAST's Executive Director is Scott R. Vele of Wisconsin.

SCIT Tribal Council

Secretary Frank J. Cloutier serves as MAST president.

Vice President Aaron A. Payment is of the Sault Ste. Marie Tribe, Treasurer Melanie Benjamin is of the Mille Lacs Band of Ojibwe (Minnesota), and Secretary Shannon Holsey is of the Stockbridge-Munsee Tribal Council (Wisconsin).

According to m-a-s-t.org, MAST was founded in 1996 and represents the 35 sovereign tribal nations of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and Michigan. MAST represents nearly 134,000 American Indian people.

MAST's mission is to "advance, protect, preserve, and enhance the mutual interests, treaty rights, sovereignty, and cultural way of life of the sovereign nations of the Midwest."

The next MAST meeting is scheduled for early October in Wisconsin.

National Preparedness Month: Be prepared, not scared

CENTRAL MICHIGAN DISTRICT HEALTH DEPARTMENT

September is National Preparedness Month. In our lives, we get prepared for a number of life's events: a new school year, a new job, marriage, etc. It's also important to prepare for the unexpected, such as a flood, winter storm, power outage, or a public health emergency.

Save early for disaster costs: Find out if flood insurance is offered in your area, whether you own your own home or rent. Also, whether it is a natural disaster or your furnace goes out, it is a good idea to have an emergency fund available.

One idea to save money is to take the spare change from your purse or wallet at the end of each month and put it into a jar, or, better yet, a savings account. In addition, it is a good idea to make copies of important financial documents. A good resource is the Emergency Financial First Aid Kit from FEMA.

Make a plan: What is your family emergency plan? Do you have enough items to last for three days without power, if necessary? Remember to plan for both your pets and those with special medical needs as you may not all be together at the time an emergency happens.

Businesses should also have a plan. Have you practiced any drills in the last year both at home and at work? The "Do 1 Thing" campaign (www.do1thing.com) is a wonderful resource for individuals and businesses.

Youth preparedness: Start by talking with your children about fire drills, both at school and home. Practice with them at home so they know what to do in case of a fire. Another great idea is to work as a family to create a family emergency kit and a plan.

Visit www.ready.gov/kids for information. Preparedness is often taught in Scouting programs as well.

Get involved in your community's preparedness: Take a CPR/First Aid course. Sign up as a volunteer with your local Community Emergency Response Team, if one is available (www.michigan.gov/emhsd).

Register as a volunteer with the American Red Cross (www.redcross.org). Register as a volunteer on the MI Volunteer Registry (<https://mivolunteer-registry.org/>).

Offer to volunteer to help with preparedness activities at school, work, or through other community organizations.

Zero Suicide: First year of progress at American Indian Health and Family Services

AMERICAN INDIAN HEALTH AND FAMILY SERVICES

Detroit — The Zero Suicide initiative has had a highly fruitful first year in serving the southeastern Michigan region and beyond in their suicide prevention efforts.

Along with serving the community, Zero Suicide has been working tirelessly to make improvements within the agency at American Indian Health and Family Services (AIHFS).

Suicide prevention at American Indian Health and Family Services:

Many clients have participated in Zero Suicide's Hope and Wellness Screenings available by appointment and on a walk-in basis at American Indian health and family services.

"The Hope and Wellness screens have been useful in identifying individuals with unmet emotional or mental health needs who may not have spoken up otherwise," said Michael Carroll, behavioral health specialist at AIHFS.

Zero Suicide works to spread awareness of suicide risk, depression, anxiety, PTSD, and substance use, and to increase life-saving interventions.

Zero Suicide, in partnership with the Sacred Bundle and Native Connections programs at AIHFS, have held over a dozen screening events and conducted more than 300 Hope and Wellness screens, and provided several gatekeeper trainings across southeastern Michigan. Gatekeeper trainings improve individuals' understanding of suicide and mental health, while providing skills to recognize and assist those in crisis based on level of need.

Extensive outreach efforts by Zero Suicide and other AIHFS programs continue to establish connections to better serve all underserved communities including (but not limited to) our tribal, military and veteran, LGBTQ2S, Arab-American, Middle-Eastern, Hispanic-Latino, and African-American community members to meet their behavioral health, medical, and general community needs.

Sixteen signs of emotional abuse in a relationship

MALLORY BLACK

Diné, StrongHearts
Native Helpline

No one expects to find themselves in an abusive relationship. Most relationships begin in a good way with kind words and compliments, but they can turn harmful and emotionally abusive at any time.

Emotional abuse is a type of domestic violence that often flies under the radar, but it should always be taken seriously as a form of abuse. When emotional abuse is present in a relationship, a partner will criticize, threaten or isolate their partner as a way to manipulate and control them.

Emotional abuse can be degrading, humiliating and terrifying, often leaving long-lasting scars on one's spirit and self-esteem.

So, how do you know if you're in an abusive relationship? What can you do when a loved one is being emotionally abused? Let's start with recognizing the tactics of emotional abuse.

Signs of emotional abuse: In an intimate relationship, emotional abuse can look like when a partner:

- Constantly calls you hurtful or degrading names, insults you or criticizes you

- Acts extremely jealous or possessive of you
- Humiliates you in any way, or shames you
- Isolates you from your family, friends or community
- Blocks you from making new friends or joining social groups
- Ignores your presence for several hours, days or weeks
- Refuses to listen, speak or respond to you (silent treatment)
- Explodes in anger toward you or is constantly angry at everything you do
- Pressures you to commit and becomes angry or sulks when you don't commit
- Threatens to hurt you or themselves, or uses weapons to scare you
- Threatens to hurt your children, family members or pets
- Threatens to take your children away from you or call child protective services (CPS) on you
- Repeatedly lies about where they are, what they're doing or who they're with
- Calls you "crazy," "too sensitive," or denies abuse is happening when confronted (ex. gaslighting)
- Cheats on you or flirts with other people to intentionally hurt you
- Accuses you of cheating in the relationship

When emotional abuse is present in a relationship, you may feel off-balance, like you're walking on eggshells, or question your judgment more than usual. This is because an abusive partner uses harmful behaviors like the tactics above to manipulate and control their partner so they feel powerless. That's why it is so important to trust your instincts when your partner does or says something that doesn't feel right to you.

Emotional abuse is extremely dangerous and detrimental to a person's wellbeing and often has lifelong psychological effects. An abusive partner's behavior is likely to escalate as time goes on, and they will often use emotional abuse in combination with other abuse types and tactics to obtain and maintain power in the relationship.

People in abusive relationships tend to blame themselves for the abuse or believe they must have done something to deserve the criticism or attacks. No one ever deserves to be abused.

No matter the abusive partner's reasoning for the abuse, domestic violence goes against our traditional ways as Native people. It is never acceptable to hurt a partner or spouse in any way.

Is arguing abusive? In every relationship, partners can expect to disagree from time to time. Arguments are a normal part of any relationship, but abusive behavior is not.

In a healthy relationship, each partner must commit to being honest, communicating, and trusting the other person. Each partner must work to maintain healthy communication and avoid hurting the other person emotionally, spiritually and physically. Above all, each partner must show respect in the relationship, especially when disagreements arise.

In an abusive relationship, any disagreement can escalate into emotionally or physically abusive behavior. Remember, there is never an excuse for abuse.

Getting help: Recognizing the signs of emotional abuse is the first step to getting help. If you or someone you know is being hurt in your relationship, know that you are not alone. There are people who want to support you, including advocates at the StrongHearts Native Helpline.

By calling 1-844-7NATIVE (762-8483), you can connect anonymously with a Native advocate who can offer a listening ear and support with whatever is happening in your relationship. You can share as much as you feel comfortable, and our advocates will listen without judgment or blame.

The StrongHearts Native Helpline is available daily from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. CST. Advocates also offer crisis intervention, assistance with finding ways to stay safe, and a connection to Tribal and Native domestic violence resources, if needed.

StrongHearts can also assist concerned friends or family members with ways to help a loved one who is being abused, as well as people who are worried they might be abusing their partner.

It can also be incredibly helpful to lean on family members and your cultural roots for support. Never forget that you have the strength and courage of your ancestors, too, who dreamed of a world where every one of their relatives would live in safety, happiness and in harmony. You deserve to feel safe in your relationship, no matter what.

Nimkee Fitness Center now offering free body scan

JADEN HARMAN

Fitness Coordinator

Nimkee Fitness Center is excited to offer another free service to the Tribal community and employees: The In-Body – Body Scan!

The In-Body is a new way to help determine a comprehensive body composition. Utilizing an improved technology of bioelectrical impedance, it provides a breakdown of your weight in terms of muscle, fat, and water.

Furthermore, it shows how muscle mass is distributed throughout the body.

Before we measured body fat percentage through the skin-fold technique with calipers, now we're able to use this less invasive technique and it gives us a much more in-depth breakdown of results. Plus it's much quicker; within five minutes, it provides us with a detailed printout.

We acquired the machine through American Indian Health and Family Services in Detroit.

Nickole Fox, director of community wellness at AIHFS, said

AIHFS purchased the machine a few years ago with I.H.S. funds, but unfortunately were not able to utilize it in their facility. She was looking to gift it to another tribal community who would put it to good use and was wondering if it could be used at Nimkee. We responded with excitement and accepted.

When determining your results, we encourage you that the numbers are a baseline of measurements that we can use to compare to future results.

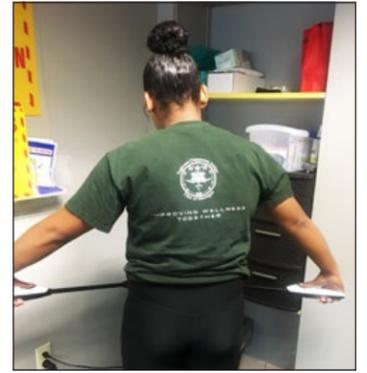

After being on a consistent fitness routine for a month or more, we can retest.

We also remind people with any machine or body composition method/tool there will be variance in measurements. To get the most accurate results you should be at a fasted state and well hydrated.

Most facilities that have this machine have to charge, because of the large cost to purchase them. However, we're fortunate to be able to offer this as another free service to our community and employees.

Stop into Nimkee Fitness to make your appointment today!

Are carbs the enemy? Six myths about carbs

MATHEW KADEY

MS, RD

(Editor's note: The following article has been republished, with permission, from the March 2019 Environmental Nutrition, and submitted by Sally Van Cise, MPH, RD, nutritionist at Nimkee Public Health.)

Everyone and their mom seem to have an opinion about carbohydrates. How much you should eat, when you should eat them, why you should never eat fruit after lunch—there is no shortage of advice regarding carbs and people ready to wage war on them. Does all this conflicting information leave you frozen in the bread aisle?

Here are a handful of common carb myths you've likely heard through the grapevine—and why you should view them as the real fake news.

Myth #1: All grains are bad news.

Sensationalist diets may attempt to pin everything from heart disease to brain fog on grains, but research shows this food group definitely should not be blamed for all of society's ills.

A 2016 study in The Journal of Nutrition showed that people who ate a whole-grain heavy diet for two months experienced improvements in blood pressure numbers.

Scientists in Denmark found that among more than 55,000 people studied those who ate the most servings of whole grains had a lower risk of developing Type 2 diabetes.

One recent study even found that people who consumed a low carbohydrate diet, which often means being skimpy in grains, were at greater risk of premature death from maladies like heart disease.

Just like other food groups, grains should play a role in an overall healthy diet. The key is to double down on unrefined whole grains such as quinoa and oats because these will give you more nutritional bang for your buck compared to refined grains and sugar.

Myth #2: High carb diets are fattening.

In fact, the opposite can be true. Many people will maintain a healthy weight while eating plenty of carbs—and not just ultra-endurance athletes.

A 2018 study published in Nutrients showed that people who followed a plant-based high-carb diet (about 70 percent of daily calories) for four months experienced benefits in their body composition including a drop in body fat levels.

A separate investigation showed that higher intakes of carbs, specifically those containing more fiber, when consumed as part of a calorie controlled diet played a big role in weight loss success among people at risk for diabetes.

"This just shows that no one food will make you fat, just like no one food will make you thinner," said Alissa Rumsey, MS, RD, founder of Alissa Rumsey Nutrition and Wellness in New York City.

What matters most she said, whether you're following a high-carb or low-carb diet, is that your overall diet contains mostly high-quality foods in appropriate portions. But, yes, polishing off a half loaf of bread will make most people gain weight.

Myth #3: Fret not about natural sugars.

Maple syrup, honey, high fructose corn syrup or table sugar—they're all very similar from a health perspective.

A 2015 study in The Journal of Nutrition found that when people ate the same amount (about two tablespoons) of honey, sucrose (i.e. white sugar) or much-maligned high fructose corn syrup every day for two weeks, they experienced the same concerning metabolic changes including a rise in blood triglycerides and markers of inflammation, both risk factors for heart problems.

Though "natural" sweeteners like coconut sugar and maple syrup may contain higher amounts of certain nutrients and antioxidants, it's hardly enough to outweigh the concerns of eating too much of them.

"The key is to make the choice to eat foods with added sugars as long as you are eating an overall balanced, nutritious diet," Rumsey said.

Myth #4: Whole grains should be your go-to fiber source.

The Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics recommends women aim for 25 grams of fiber per day and 38 grams per day for men. Yes, whole grains can help you nail this quota but you're likely going to need more help to get there.

For instance, a half-cup serving of brown rice has about three grams of fiber while certain brands of whole-wheat bread may only deliver a single gram per slice.

"The key to getting the fiber you need daily is to vary your sources including fruits, vegetables, pulses and whole grains," Rumsey said.

Myth #5: Today's wheat has more gluten.

Despite the internet gossip, Rumsey says there is no proof that the gluten content of wheat has increased with modern agriculture. But regardless of wheat's gluten potency, research continues to show that the vast majority of people experience no health benefits from avoiding gluten (a protein, ironically, not a carb).

Twenty teams of Tribal elders compete in inaugural cornhole tournament

NATALIE SHATTUCK

Editor

This year during Saginaw Chippewa Powwow week, an inaugural cornhole tournament for Tribal elders was added to the list of events.

On Thursday, July 25, more than 20 teams competed throughout the afternoon in the Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort ballrooms.

The tournament followed the official American Cornhole Association rules.

Every match was broken down into innings of play. During an inning of play, each player must pitch all four of his or her bags. An inning was not completed until all players pitch all four of his or her bags.

Theodore Kowalski and Joe Kowalski won first place in the cornhole tournament.

Mark Chapoton and Melinda Coffin achieved second place, and third place went to Sheridan Pelcher and Shellie Jeffrey.

Bernard Sprague organized and also competed in the tournament.

“The idea came from my brother Bean and I discussing the elders’ trip. We thought of how we could make it a part of the activities,” Sprague said. “I contacted Lisa Ayling (At-Large elders advocate) and she was receptive to the idea. Lisa and I talked a few times about the format and other details; we agreed that going coed would be the best format.”

Sprague said he was expecting 12 to 16 teams to sign up, and was “excited when they hit the 20-team mark.”

“We hope to make this an annual event for all of the trip participants and their families,” Sprague said. “There were some issues to address to make the 2020 tournament even more exciting and enjoyable.”

Sprague and the event organizers wished to thank the Soaring Eagle Maintenance staff for setting up the boards, the Food and Beverage staff for the snacks and beverages, and the Sales team for making the ballroom sections available.

“(Competitors witnessed) first time players hit 3’s and jumping for joy and experienced players exiting in the second round,” Sprague said. “It was competitive and comical all at the same time. I know a lot of the players are looking forward to next year and I can’t wait to see them play and possibly win their first match.”

Ayling said many elders enjoyed watching the competition.

“The set up was impressive and after experiencing it myself, I definitely would bring it back and was impressed by the turn out,” Ayling said. “They (Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort) did a great job helping make this event so successful, and thank you Bernie, for providing such a great idea that blossomed into a great event.”

Editorial:

ANDAHWOD RESIDENT

I met this wonderfully outspoken Nokomis with the pretty eyes, in January. Every winter day, no matter how high the snow was, and with wistful eyes and a happy smile she has looked forward to “fishing with Joe.”

In her funny way she would say, “I better be nice to Joe because he’s going to take me fishing” and then she would giggle; which is funny in itself as she is nice to everyone.

Nokomis Tweetie, yes it’s her given name, is a Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe of Michigan Tribal Member elder who uses an electronic wheelchair to get around but still goes to the workout room to exercise.

Tweetie is also walking again and is a great role model for our young people: You’re never too old to follow your dreams and attain your goals.

Our Anishinaabe Nokomis is one determined grandmother with many unique qualities. One that stands out is her love for Elvis Presley. You must ask for permission to touch her Elvis eyeglass case before assisting her at Bingo.

Another skill? At the “Name That Tune” gatherings, she can belt out most of the country songs before anyone else has a chance to hear the second note – pretty impressive.

Two-timing

Courtesy photo

Tweetie catches two fish on the same hook during a recent fishing trip.

She lunches at her “office” (aka The Aurora Buffet) where she is known for her hats and the use of the right-hand chair where she rests her foot.

Lastly, and not nearly least of all, Tweetie is an avid card shark, putting many euchre players to shame. This card shark, euchre-playing, hat-wearing, song-naming, Elvis fan named Tweetie brings this two-timing story full circle.

Tweetie has been nice to Joe, and so the fishing story of Two-timing Tweetie comes to a head.

During the summer, the elders go fishing and there has been a Nokomis who puts most of us to shame, including Mark. We’ll get to him too.

The first time Tweetie told her story, I could barely believe it. She caught 12, yes, 12 fish. She said, “I’ve been fishing all my life,” like every fisherman or fisherwoman catches fish because they’ve been fishing their entire lives. Wouldn’t that be nice!

Then the following fishing escapade, she caught another 10, yes, 10 fish.

The tally - Mark: zero, Tweetie: 22.

We sure liked to razz Mark about his tally.

The third trip... on the final cast... now hold onto your fishing pole... our unique Tweetie caught TWO fish on the same hook, at the same time!

Most people get caught two-timing and face the walk of shame but our elder Tribal Member is proud to be a two-timer and has most likely made history!

This isn’t a fish tale. We have the pictures to prove it.

And Mark? He made up for all those fishes of Tweetie’s by catching The Big One.

We are so proud of our elders, Joe and the staff at Andahwod that help us make our dreams come true!

Seventh Generation Program presents 14th People's Traditional Powwow

NATALIE SHATTUCK

Editor

The Seventh Generation Program and its Elijah Elk Cultural Center presented the 14th People's Traditional Powwow Aug. 24-25, with activities beginning the evening of Friday, Aug. 23.

Friday activities began at 6 p.m. and included a bonfire, entertainment by Brothers in Music, a watermelon eating contest and an 8 p.m. lacrosse game.

Grand entries began that Saturday at 1 and 7 p.m., and on Sunday at 1 p.m. at the Seventh Generation Powwow Grounds (7957 E. Remus Rd. in Mount Pleasant, Mich.)

On Saturday afternoon, Cruz and Kasey Perez were chosen as the head dancers.

Other than the head dancers chosen each session, the dignitaries remained the same throughout the weekend.

Dignitaries included: Head Veteran George Martin, Emcee host drum Red Willow, co-host drum Eagle Flight, and invited drums Hay Creek and Bear River.

"The co-host drum (Eagle Flight) – all the way from London, Ontario," Sullivan said, announcing Eagle Flight before they provided the Saturday afternoon flag song.

Before the invocation, Sullivan addressed the crowd.

"(Someone) once told me that there's nothing stronger than a bunch of Anishinabe people praying together – no matter what way that is," Sullivan said.

The weekend included spot dances and day money to the first 100 registered dancers.

The powwow was open to the public and included free admission.

A feast was also held at 5 p.m. on Saturday.

"Seventh Generation staff would like to send out a huge chi-miigwetch to everyone who assisted in any way to support our powwow," said Tonya Jackson, administrative assistant II for Seventh Generation, in an email to Tribal employees. "We had tons of compliments on how our guests had a wonderful time; the atmosphere and vibes were great. We would like to thank all of our sponsors, as well. We look forward to hosting again next year."

A list of collaborators Seventh Generation listed on the event flyer included: the Saginaw Chippewa Tribal College, Ziibiwing Center of Anishinabe Culture & Lifeways, the Saginaw Chippewa Housing Department and Bead & Powwow Supply: Where Breathtaking Regalia Begins.
