Tribal Libraries receive grant to determine a system of organization for cataloging, classifying library materials that best reflect Anishinaabe ways

NATALIE SHATTUCK
Editor

"Library organizational systems have largely been created from a distinctly settler colonialist perspective that actively treats anyone who is not a 'white able cis American male' as 'The Other,'" said Tribal Librarian Anne Heidemann.

"Tribal libraries should serve the community, in a good way, that is free from these prejudices," Heidemann said.

The Tribal Libraries received a three-year grant for a project that will bring together a group of community members to assess the cataloging and classification systems currently used in the Saginaw Chippewa Tribal Libraries through a decolonizing lens, and to determine a system of organization for cataloging and classifying library materials according to Anishinaabe ways of knowing and being, according to Heidemann.

The Institute of Museum and Library Services awarded $238,420 to the Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe for the National Leadership Grants for Libraries.

"This project will give the community the opportunity to determine what system of organization best reflects Anishinaabe ways of being, and to be leaders in efforts across Turtle Island to decolonize and indigenize library services," Heidemann said.

A facilitator will be hired for the project and is currently posted on the Tribe's website, as of Tribal Observer press time.

This grant will address the following questions: How can tribal libraries use traditional ways of knowing and being to break free of the colonialist epistemology of existing library organizational systems that reinforce a damaging worldview?

According to a media release from Public Relations Director Frank Cloutier, "this project aligns directly to the IMLS agency-level goal to build capacity by making the Tribal Libraries a community catalyst to improve the wellbeing of the community. The projected outcomes of this project are that community members are more invested in the libraries, library materials are easier to find, the systems are easier to learn and navigate, the libraries are used more and are known as trusted, respectful source for quality resources, and community members are satisfied with the system of organization."

Once completed, the new system will be implemented in the Tribal Libraries.

"After that, we will share documentation that outlines how this project was conducted, providing a framework that other libraries could use as a template for decolonizing the knowledge organization of their collections," Heidemann said.

Once the facilitator is hired, they will be looking for a small group of community members who are willing to meet precisely once a month to work on the project.

What is the Census

HAYG OSHAGAN
Wayne State University,
Director of New
Michigan Media

What is the census? The U.S. Constitution requires that the federal government count every person living in the U.S. The U.S. Census has been conducted every 10 years since 1790.

Why is the Census important? Every year, the federal government gives money it has collected from taxes back to the states. How much money a state gets depends on how many people live in that state. The count of how many people live in a state is determined every 10 years by the Census.

So, if a state has a low Census count, it will get less money from the federal government, every year, for the 10 years after the Census count. Recently, Michigan has gotten about $30 billion a year based on the 2010 Census.

In addition to federal funds, how many representatives a state has in the U.S. Congress also depends on a state's population, which is determined by the Census. Because of a low Census count, Michigan lost a Congressional seat in 2010, going from 15 Congressmen and Congresswomen in the U.S. House of Representatives, to the current 14.

2020: An introduction

What is the money used for? The $30 billion Michigan gets every year is used by the state, used by counties, used by Native American tribes, and used by cities for programs that serve our communities.

This is money that funds our kids' education (student loans, Pell grants, school lunches and breakfasts, Headstart, school funding), helps with health care (Medicare, Medicaid, Urgent Care, children's health insurance/MI Child), is used for food assistance (Supplemental Nutrition, Bridge Cards, Meals on Wheels), housing loans, road construction, transit, and any program that helps our communities grow and prosper.

What happens if the count is low? Michigan, and every county and city in Michigan, gets a lot less money for all the programs the Census pays for. As an example, for Detroit, every person not counted would cost the city $5,500 every year for 10 years. If 3 percent of Detroiters don't get counted (about 20,000 people), Detroit would lose $1 billion over the next 10 years.

Who should be counted? Everyone. The Census counts everyone who is living in America. It doesn't matter if you are a citizen or not a citizen, if you have a Green Card, or a visitor visa, or an expired visa, a student with an F1 visa or an employee with an H-1b visa, if you live in the U.S., you count for the Census.

The only people not counted are those who are here as tourists, and are planning to return to their home country. Everyone else counts.

Make sure to count everyone in your household, including children and newborns. And if you sublet to anyone, you need to count them too.

What is a household? For the Census, a household is an address. The Census does not have names, it only has addresses. There are about 140 million addresses in the U.S., and the Census is sent to each of those addresses. People who live in groups with a single address (jails, hospitals, nursing homes, school dormitories, etc.) are also counted.

Is the Census confidential? The United States has a law specifically for the Census, to make sure it is 100 percent confidential. The Census Act, Title 13, of the United States Code, has the strictest confidentiality laws on the federal books.

The information collected by the Census CANNOT be shared with ANY other agency. It cannot be given to ICE, to the FBI, to Homeland Security, the Department of Justice, the IRS, local police, the sheriff, social service agencies, insurance companies, businesses or anyone. For any reason. And over the last 50+ years, this law has never been broken, not even once.

How many questions are on the Census? The Census is nine questions. That's it. And there is no question about your citizenship or visa status. The Census only cares to know if you live in the U.S.

What comes in the mail? In the past, the Census was a paper questionnaire. This year, most people will get a card in the mail with a unique ID that you use to fill out the Census online. Where the internet is slow, people will get the paper version to fill out and send back. People can also call in and complete the Census on the phone.

The Census is mailed on March 12. If you don't respond, you will get reminders on March 16, March 23, April 8, and April 20.

Will someone knock on my door? If you don't send the Census back by the end of April, Census workers will come to your door. They have badges and identification from the Census Bureau, and they will ask you to complete the Census. It is much better to fill it out on your own, and not wait for the Census workers to come by. We get a much better count that way.

We only have one chance to get counted. There is a lot of funding tied to the U.S. Census that helps everyone in our communities, from our children to the elderly. Make sure to fill it out when you get it. The 10 minutes we spend filling out the Census now will affect our communities for the next 10 years.

Red dresses hang outside Tribal departments to bring awareness to MMIWG

NATALIE SHATTUCK

Editor

In an effort to bring awareness to the Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls (MMIWG), the Redrum Motorcycle Club hung nearly 20 red dresses throughout the Tribal community on Feb. 24.

The dresses, to be on display until June 1, are located outdoors at the following Tribal locations:

- Behavioral Health (one dress)
- Black Elk building (two dresses, one at each main entrance)
- The Ziibiwing Center (one dress)
- Anishnaabeg Child & Family Services (one dress)
- Andahwod Continuing Care and Elders Services (one)
- Tribal Education Department (one)
- Saginaw Chippewa Tribal College (two dresses, one at each entrance – East and West)
- Nimkee Clinic (two dresses – one at the Clinic entrance, one at Nimkee Fitness)
- The Recreation Department (one)
- The Housing department (one)
- Tribal Court (one)

- Tribal Police Department (one)
- Utilities/Wastewater Treatment (one)
- Saganing Outreach office (one)
- Sasiwaans Immersion School (one)
- Seventh Generation (one)

"Each department has given their approval and the dresses will be hung until June 1," said Marcella Hadden, a photographer of several portraits in the MMIWG exhibit to be opened soon. "The dresses will be checked periodically to make sure they are in good condition."

This is one of the MMIWG components regarding the community curated exhibit slated to open on April 23, 2020 at the Ziibiwing Center.

According to the National Crime Information Center, more than 5,700 American Indian and Alaska Native women and girls were reported missing as of 2016, but only 116 of those cases were logged with the Department of Justice.

Eighty-four percent of Native women experience violence in their lifetime, according to the National Institute of Justice. A 2008 study found that women in some tribal communities are 10 times more likely to be murdered than the national average.

Submitting articles to the Tribal Observer always welcome

NATALIE SHATTUCK

Editor

Tribal Members, employees, departments, community members are always welcome to submit articles or letters to the Tribal Observer.

The Tribal Observer staff suggests any submissions remain 600 words or less and must be appropriate for the publication and its audience.

The managing editor bears the right to refuse the publishing of any articles or letters that are irrelevant or inappropriate. Feel free to send any submissions to Observer@sagchip.org. Any questions may also be answered by calling (989) 775-4010.

Along with departmental and Members' articles, the Tribal Observer also accepts letters to the editor and guest columns.

What is a letter to the editor? Letters to the editor must be relevant to our coverage. They should be in response to an article that has already been published in a recent Tribal Observer. They must address subject matters that in some way affect the Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe, its members or local community. Letters can be authored by more than one person but must have a name attributed to them. They are subjected to be edited into proper Associated Press (AP) Style of writing for newspaper print.

What is a guest column? Guest columns can be a topic of the author's choosing. They should be relevant to the Tribal Observer's audience. They are also subject to a thorough editing process. If the guest column is approved for publishing, authors are welcome to submit a headshot or stop in the Tribal Observer offices for a photograph.

How long can article submissions be? Articles submitted should be a maximum of 600 words. The editor has the right to shorten submissions. Articles that are longer than 600 words are dealt with on a case-by-case basis and published at the discretion of the editor.

Does the Tribal Observer edit the submissions? We reserve the right to edit all submissions for clarity and AP Style, as well as to fact-check or shorten them to fit available space for print.

How does the Tribal Observer choose which submissions to publish? We make our best effort to publish all submissions that come through before the deadline, sometimes even making arrangements to print those that have been received past the deadline. Any submission received does not guarantee its immediate publication.

How do I make a submission to the Tribal Observer? Again, any submissions may be sent to Observer@sagchip.org and the staff is available to answer any questions at (989) 775-4010.

The deadline is typically around the 15th of each month, so please turn in submissions around that day each month by 5 p.m.

If you are requesting a photo to be ran with your submission, please include a suggested caption for the photo which provides enough detail of what is occurring in the photo. (Names, job titles if applicable, location, the date the photo was taken, etc.)

Editorial: Winter Baby Celebration sees 17 newborns at Seventh Generation

LEE ANN RUFFINO

Seventh Generation
Cultural Manager

Have you ever been in a room with 17 newborn babies? It is a beautiful and heart-warming experience. This is what happens at 7th Generation, when we hold the bi-annual Mnaajaadaa gda binoojiinhsminaanik (Let's Celebrate Our Babies), in collaboration with Nimkee Healthy Start, Anishnaabeg Child and Family Services (ACFS) and Anishinaabe Language Revitalization Department (ALRD).

The winter Baby Celebration took place on Jan. 30, and there were 17 babies and 69 friends and family with them.

This year in the planning meetings, Nokomis Bonnie Ekdahl reminded us of the very beginnings (27 years ago) from where the Baby Celebration was born. The intention was to introduce all the newly-born binoojiinhsak (babies) to the community, to welcome them, to honor them, in a good way.

With this in mind, all parents and guardians were handed a card when they arrived to the celebration.

The winter Baby Celebration, held at Seventh Generation, honored the following newborn babies: Emilee Rose Youmans, Janessa Franco, Madiana Alaniz, Jezreel Cantu, Abel Collins, Nizhoni Starkey, Niigaanii Rueckert, Makogonzh Wemigwans-Hart, Asher Jackson, Gabriel Navejar, Waasebiya, Estella Tree, Winona Sky Wemigwans, Ella Pelcher, Asa Alvarez and Eleanor Meshkawzii.

They filled out the card with the baby's name, spirit name (if known yet), birth and other details, and then were asked to come up in front of the crowd and read their card. This way, everyone at the celebration could be formally introduced to that new community member. Important family members in the baby's life were asked to come up and speak for the baby as well.

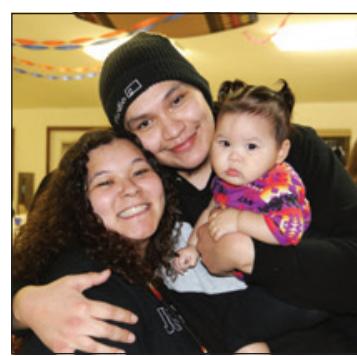

Also this year at the celebration, nokomisak (grandmothers) from the community personally selected a poem from Anishinaabe poetry books, lent to us by the Tribal Library, to read aloud for the families! The subject matter in the poems selected, were about the good life, family, babies and love.

Nokomis Charmaine Shawana shared a poem that she wrote herself. Chimiigwetch Charmaine!

Sandy Smith, who has been a huge supporter in the Baby Celebration since it began, donated her beautiful handmade blankets, and again, everyone loved them. Miigwetch Sandy!

What a truly beautiful and moving night it was for everyone, I feel honored to be a part

American Indian Youth Literature awards recognized at national media event, SCIT librarian in attendance

American Indian Youth Literature Award winning titles were highlighted during the American Library Association Youth Media Awards, the premier announcement of the ‘best of the best’ in children’s and young adult literature.

The awards were held on Jan. 27 in Philadelphia. Tribal Librarian Anne Heidemann was in attendance; she also serves on the committee for the American Indian Youth Literature Awards.

“The AIYLAs have been awarded for several years, but this was the first time they were announced at the big press conference where the other, more widely known, youth literature awards such as the Caldecott and Newbery are announced,” Heidemann said.

Awarded biennially, the American Indian Youth Literature Awards honor the very best writing and illustrations by and about Native Americans and Indigenous peoples of North America.

“Books selected to receive the award present Indigenous North American peoples in the fullness of their humanity,” stated a media release from the American Indian Library Association.

“Bowwow Powwow: Bagosenjige-nimi’idim,” written by Brenda J. Child

(Red Lake Ojibwe) received the 2020 award for Best Picture Book. The book was translated into Ojibwe by Gordon Jourdain (Lac La Croix First Nation) and illustrated by Jonathan Thunder (Red Lake Ojibwe).

In “Bowwow Powwow: Bagosenjige-nimi’idim,” Windy goes to a powwow with her uncle and her dog Itchy Boy, and afterwards, she falls asleep under the northern lights. She has a “weird and wonderful” dream about a Bowwow Powwow, where all the dancers are dogs. Windy sees veterans in a grand entry, a drum group, and traditional dancers, grass dancers, jingle-dress dancers, and fancy dancers – all with telltale ears and paws and tails. The brightly-colored pictures evoke the sights, sounds, and tastes of a powwow – “always in motion, part old and part new, glittering and plain, but still wonderful, almost like a dream.”

The Best Middle School Grade Book award went to “Indian No More,” written by Charlene Willing McManis (Umpqua/Confederated Tribes of Grande Ronde) with Traci Sorell (Cherokee). The cover art was by Marlena Myles (Spirit Lake Dakota, Mohegan, Muscogee Creek).

In “Indian No More,” it is 1957, and as part of the Indian termination policy, the United States government has passed the Indian Relocation Act to assimilate Native Americans from reservations into urban areas. Ten-year-old Regina and her family have to leave the Grand Ronde Reservation after the federal government tells them the Umpqua Tribe no longer exists. Regina becomes “Indian no more” overnight – even though her ancestors were Indian for countless generations. Her family moves to Los Angeles, where for the first time, Regina faces the viciousness of racism. This story will resonate with modern Native American families, over 70 percent of whom now live in urban areas.

The Best Young Adult Book award went to “Hearts Unbroken,” written by Cynthia Leitch Smith (Muscogee).

In “Hearts Unbroken,” Louise is a high school journalist with a major story to cover: the school musical director’s ethnically-inclusive approach to casting “The Wizard of Oz,” which has provoked backlash in their mostly white, middle-class Kansas town. Long-held prejudices are laid bare and hostilities spread against teachers, parents, and students – especially the cast members at the center of the controversy, including Lou’s little brother, who’s playing the Tin Man. As tensions heighten at school, so does Lou’s romantic life – but as she’s learned, “dating while Native” can be difficult. Will she protect her own heart, or break someone else’s?

The committee also chose an assortment of honor books that were recognized (up to five honor awards may be selected in each category.)

All books are available at the Tribal Libraries, according to Heidemann.

According to a media release, Lara Aase, 2020 AIYLA chair, said about this round of awards, “there were more excellent books submitted than ever before, including some from major U.S. publishers.”

“We chose books that appealed to the young readers we know, and we were thrilled to see writers address contemporary as well as historic and traditional topics, including everything from fry bread to forced adoption to finger weaving, Native women military heroes to missing and murdered Indigenous women and girls, traditional tattooing to high school romance to grizzly bears,” Aase said, according to a media release.

“Many of us grapple with issues of identity; we are grateful to see authors and illustrators represent the myriad identities of young Indigenous readers.”

Heidemann is donating all of the books she received from being on the committee to the Tribal Libraries for the collections for patrons’ enjoyment.

Oscar speaker Sacheen Littlefeather

Nowadays, politics and controversy are commonplace at the Oscars — famous actors and actresses oftentimes make heated statements.

Long before politics were ever discussed at the Oscars, there was a speech presented by Sacheen Littlefeather in 1973. Littlefeather was the first Indigenous person to use the Oscars as a platform to protest the mistreatment of her people.

On March 27, 1973, Littlefeather accepted the “Best Actor in a Leading Role” Academy Award on behalf of Marlon Brando for his performance in “The Godfather.”

Brando asked Littlefeather to go as his proxy and refuse the Oscar, as Brando was boycotting the Academy Awards in protest of Hollywood’s portrayal of Native Americans. Brando was drawing attention to the stand-off at Wounded Knee occurring at the time.

Littlefeather’s speech was met with both applause and jeers from the audience members.

As a pre-celebration for the Oscars 2020, the 92nd Academy Awards, which aired on Sunday, Feb. 9, the Ziibiwing Center hosted a Feb. 7 lunch and learn film screening of the documentary “Sacheen.”

After 45 years of silence, Littlefeather tells her side of the story in the 2018 documentary. Littlefeather, 26 years old at the time of her Oscars speech, is an Apache and Yaqui Indigenous actress and activist.

Shannon Martin, director of the Ziibiwing Center, provided a welcome to those in attendance and introduced the film.

“Hope you enjoy this much... (Sacheen Littlefeather) is just a force,” Martin said.

Oscar winner Taika Waititi

The Ziibiwing Center also has a direct correlation to the 2020 Oscars. New Zealand filmmaker and actor Taika Waititi (Māori) visited the Ziibiwing Center in May 2011 during a Sundance Institute workshop.

Waititi, director of “Jojo Rabbit,” won the 2020 Oscar for “Best Adapted Screenplay.”

He wrote, directed and starred in the film.

He accepted the award during the televised ceremony held at the Dolby Theatre in Hollywood, Calif. on that Sunday evening.

“I dedicate this to all the Indigenous kids in the world who want to do art and dance and write stories,” Waititi said in his acceptance speech. “We are the original storytellers and we can make it here as well.”

“Reflecting on Taika’s visit in 2011, I can honestly say that he inspired all of the Tribal youth filmmaking workshop participants with his quick wit, love for all that is Indigenous, and passion for storytelling,” Martin said. “It’s been exciting to watch his career grow since then and to enjoy his many films. Watching Taika receive an Oscar brought tears to my eyes knowing that he truly ‘walks his talk’ — he loves to empower and encourage Indigenous youth.”

Smiling, Martin also mentioned Taika is an “awesome blackjack player.”

“We played for hours at the Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort,” Martin said.

Editorial: Councilman Ronald F. Ekdahl visits SCTC speech class

AMEE SCHMIDT

SCTC English Faculty

As the semester gets on a roll, the students in the ENG 130: Public Speaking course at the Saginaw Chippewa Tribal College are moving on to delivering their second speech. Their task has been to research an influential person of Anishinaabe descent, and then present on that person's life, achievements, and influence.

The class has focused on how to represent oneself ethically, responsibly, and credibly.

On Feb. 3, after a short discussion about the history of free speech and the various ethical considerations of public speaking, the class welcomed Saginaw Chippewa Tribal Councilman Ronald F. Ekdahl.

Ekdahl has been elected to Tribal Council for three consecutive terms, and served as chief from 2017-2019.

Ekdahl visited the class to discuss his approaches to public speaking. He first talked about his struggles with speaking in front of crowds, admitting that he sometimes gets nervous. He gave examples of some of his hardest tasks, such as the State of the Tribe address.

In order to be successful, Ekdahl said, a public speaker needs to be able to change his/her approach for different audiences, s/he must level with the audience, do research for preparedness, and dress for the part.

Most importantly, to establish credibility, Ekdahl stressed that you have to, "walk the walk."

After his compelling talk, Ekdahl offered his support to SCTC students, even inviting them to practice their speeches with him. Miigwetch Ron, you are truly a role model for SCTC students!

SCTC student Mikayla Steele-Cyphert to become national presenter

MARY PELCHER

Curriculum Design Specialist

The Saginaw Chippewa Tribal College is very proud of Mikayla Steele-Cyphert, SCIT member, Saginaw Chippewa Tribal College student, mom and national presenter! Mikayla is a mom of two young children, is carrying a full load of credits at SCTC, and still finds time to be a national presenter.

Mikayla will present at the National Conference of Undergraduate Research (NCUR) at Montana State University in Bozeman, Mont. on March 26-28, 2020.

Mikayla's topic – Critical Issues Surrounding Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women – was selected from more than 4,000 submissions. Mikayla will present to her peers, faculty and staff from across the nation.

In fact, this is the second time Mikayla was selected; her first presentation was at the 2019 NCUR conference, Kennesaw, Ga. Her topic, at that time, was Traditional Anishinaabe Teachings in Modern Day Classrooms.

NCUR's purpose for this conference is to create a unique environment for the celebration and promotion of undergraduate student achievement; provide models of exemplary research, scholarship, and creative activity; and help to improve the state of undergraduate education.

Mikayla attends to represent her Tribe, school, and family. She proves that persistence is the greatest asset a student can possess.

She received her GED from SCTC in the fall of 2017; she then transitioned right into SCTC courses. She will graduate from SCTC in spring of 2020 with an associate in Native American Studies.

Her plan is to continue her education at a university level, to achieve a degree in Tribal and Indigenous Law.

Mikayla said, "Quitting is not an option!"

She knows she has to go outside of her comfort zone in order to grow. Mikayla is a role model for her children, and encourages her siblings to continue with their education.

Mikayla is a role model for all of us! Miigwetch Mikayla!

The Blues

NATALIE SHATTUCK

Editor

What started as a "Saturday Night Live" skit turned into an overnight sensation to be remembered for many generations to come. In 1980 after the "SNL" success, "The Blues Brothers" was turned into a movie starring John Belushi and Dan Aykroyd.

Set in Chicago, Belushi stars as "Joliet" Jake and Aykroyd's character is Elwood Blues.

After the movie's great success, a live tour eventually came to fruition. After

Brothers live: A memorable Soaring Eagle show

Belushi's death in 1982, Aykroyd and Belushi's brother, Jim Belushi (Zee), now tour the nation as The Blues Brothers, live on stage with a full band.

The Blues Brothers performed at the Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort on Friday, Feb. 21.

Elwood and his brother, Zee, were joined by the band, The Sacred Hearts, to perform an evening of classic blues and R&B cover songs.

The Sacred Hearts first appeared on stage shortly after 8 p.m. to perform a medley of instrumental covers. Elwood and Zee soon joined the stage (as the audience went wild) to perform Robert Johnson's "Sweet Home Chicago," Otis Redding's "Hard to Handle" and Muddy Waters' "I'm Ready," where Zee (Jim Belushi) danced off stage and in the audience.

Elwood and Zee traded off on the lead vocals.

The band then performed a cover of Howlin' Wolf's "Three Hundred Pounds of Joy" during which Zee exposed his bare-skinned belly to the audience, and Big Joe Turner & His Blues Kings' "Flip Flop and Fly."

"The title of this next song sums up all of that relationship commitment stuff," Zee (Jim Belushi) said of the song "36-22-36."

With her beer in hand, a front row audience member was brought on stage to slow dance with Zee. "Now that is really a girl from Michigan, I'll come on stage and dance but I'm bringing my beer with me!" said one of The Sacred Hearts, laughing with the audience member, when the song ended.

During "Land of 1,000 Dances," a few female audience members joined on stage to show off their dance moves, including Brooke Kequom, who was all smiles.

Elwood and Zee let a few of their band members take the lead vocals and showcase instrumental solos on the next few songs.

What a beautiful Tribal casino, Elwood (Aykroyd) said, "It's our third time being here at Soaring Eagle."

"We dedicate this next song to the late, great Jake Blues," Zee said, triggering audience roars, prior to performing

"She Caught the Katy."

To close the main set, the two stars performed Sam & Dave's "Soul Man," then exited the stage the same way they entered — with a slow, synchronized march, one foot at a time.

After an extremely brief break, the band, Elwood and Zee reemerged on stage to perform an encore featuring Solomon Burke's "Everybody Needs Somebody to Love" and Barrett Strong's "Money (That's What I Want)," as more than 20 female audience members joined on stage for a last dance.

America with special guest Christopher Cross celebrate 50 years of music

MATTHEW WRIGHT

Staff Writer

The Soaring Eagle hosted classic rock band America and special guest Christopher Cross on Friday, Feb. 7. The Entertainment Hall stage marked the latest stop on their 50th Anniversary Tour.

Founding members of America, Dewey Bunnell and Gerry Beckley, were joined on stage by a supporting cast of musicians.

Even after five decades of touring, the duos harmonies and musicianship proved to be as sharp as ever. This was evident throughout the night, with their performances of hits songs, spanning across more than 20 albums.

America began with the laidback grooves of "Tin Man," followed by "You Can Do Magic" and "Don't Cross the River."

Lead singer Dewey Bunnell then stopped to recognize fellow musician Christopher Cross, who opened the show.

"You know between these two acts, we have six Grammys," he said. "We (America) have one of those."

Next up was the soft rock love song "Daisy Jane," followed by "Riverside," "I Need You," "Here" and "Ventura Highway."

The band also played covers of the timeless hits

"Eleanor Rigby" by The Beatles and "California Dreamin'" by The Mamas & Papas.

The music continued with "Cornwall Blank," "Hollywood," "The Border," and "Woman Tonight," "Only in Your Heart," "Lonely People" and "Sandman."

The show ended with America's two biggest hits with "Sister Golden Hair" and an encore of "A Horse With No Name." Both singles achieved No. 1 status on the Billboard Hot 100 chart.

Opening the night for America was singer-songwriter Christopher Cross.

Joined by three backup singers, Cross began with the hit songs "All Right" and "Never Be the Same."

Next up, Cross performed the No. 1 hit single "Sailing." After its release in 1980, the song and its album would go on to win three Grammy awards for Record of the Year, Song of the Year and Arrangement of the Year.

Next up were a trio of hits with "Baby It's All You," "I Really Don't Know Anymore" and "Poor Shirley."

The Oscar winning song "Arthur's Theme (Best That You Can Do)" was followed by "Words of Wisdom," "Spinning" and "Say You'll Be Mine."

He also performed the songs "The Light Is On," "Minstrel Gigolo," "No Time for Talk" and "Ride Like the Wind."

Cross ended on a high note with the No. 1 single "Think of Laura."

NALOXONE - Can Save a Life!

ITC provides Naloxone/Harm Reduction Training

Contact Lisa Moran, Education Manager

• Phone: 906-632-6896 Ext. 126 • Email: lmoran@itcmi.org

As the number of fatal opioid overdoses continue to increase dramatically across America, it is IMPORTANT to have naloxone in the hands of first responders, health professionals, family members, roommates and friends who can save someone's life before it's too late!

Who is at risk for an opioid overdose?

- People who take prescription opioids, especially in high doses.
- People who use alcohol, anti-depressants, or benzodiazepines in addition to opioids.
- People who are addicted to prescription or illicit opioids.
- People who have recently detoxed from opioids, or who are recently in recovery from opioid addiction.

What is naloxone?

- Also known by brand names Narcan or Evzio—Safe, FDA-approved medication that has been proven to reverse opioid overdoses in minutes. It comes in forms of a nasal spray and an injection.
- It can reverse an opioid overdose in minutes.

How does naloxone work?

- When you take an opioid, it binds to specific receptors in the brain, spinal cord & gastrointestinal tract.
- During an overdose, the drugs depress the user's respiratory system so much that the user stops breathing completely.
- Naloxone is an opioid antagonist used to temporarily reverse the effects of an overdose.
- It binds to the same receptor as the opioid, displacing the opioid in the process & temporarily undoing its harmful effects.
- After naloxone has been administered to an overdose victim, they can begin breathing again within a matter of a minute.

What is the need?

- There is a small time period of opportunity to reverse overdose & ensure the person stays alive when they over-dose.
- Must be introduced to the body relatively quickly.
- It's only meant to be a first line of defense during overdose, because its antidote effect will wear off in 20-90 minutes.
- It buys time for the victim until they can be treated more thoroughly by licensed medical professionals.

How do you get naloxone?

- You may be able to access free or low-cost naloxone kits through community organizations.
- Local Pharmacy—these medications are available in most states without a prescription. (Cost varies)

Early colorectal cancer screening essential to prevention and increasing cure rate

CENTRAL MICHIGAN DISTRICT HEALTH DEPARTMENT

Colorectal cancer is the third most common cancer diagnosed in both men and women in the United States with a lifetime risk of about one in 23 (4.4 percent) for men and one in 25 (4.1 percent) for women.

The American Cancer Society estimates there will be 104,610 new cases of colon cancer diagnosed in the United States in 2020 and 43,340 cases of rectal cancer.

It is estimated that colorectal cancers will cause about 53,200 deaths during 2020. Central Michigan District Health Department wants to ensure the public knows that colorectal cancer is preventable with early detection.

The death rate from colorectal cancer has been dropping in both men and women for several decades likely due to many reasons. The percentage of U.S. adults aged 50 to 75 years who were up-to-date with colorectal cancer screening increased by 1.4 percentage points, from 67.4 percent in 2016 to 68.8 percent in 2018. This represents an additional 3.5 million adults screened for colorectal cancer.

Colorectal polyps are being found earlier by screening and removed before they can develop into cancers or are being found when the disease is easier to treat.

Treatment for colorectal cancer has improved over the last few decades. As a result, there are now more than one million survivors of colorectal cancer in the United States.

There are often no symptoms when colorectal cancer is first developing which means it can only be detected through regular early screening.

Being over age 50, having a family history of colorectal cancer, having a history of colon polyps or inflammatory bowel disease, and having a history of certain cancers are all factors that create a higher risk for colorectal cancer.

All men and women of average risk for colorectal cancer should have regular colorectal cancer screening starting at the age of 50. Your doctor may recommend earlier screening if you have one or more risk factors. Call your medical care provider and ask about his/her recommendations for screening.

Other factors, such as obesity, long-time eating of red meat or processed meat, tobacco use and moderate alcohol use can increase risks of colorectal cancer.

Lifestyle modifications, such as eating fruits, vegetables and high fiber foods, exercising regularly, not smoking, limiting your alcohol consumption and maintaining a healthy body weight, have been reported to decrease the risks of colorectal cancer.

If you have been diagnosed with colorectal cancer, your cancer care team will discuss your treatment options with you. There are several options for treating colorectal cancer but the most successful option starts with catching it early by participating in prevention screenings.

Andahwod receives $1,375 donation from Waterpark's Festival of Trees

NATALIE SHATTUCK

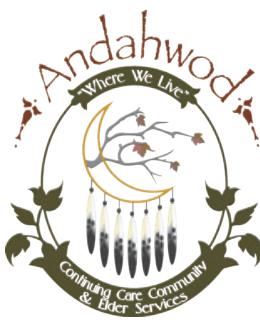

Editor

During the Christmas season, the Soaring Eagle Waterpark and Hotel hosted the fourth annual Festival of Trees, a charity event benefitting Andahwod Continuing Care and Elder Services.

Participants returned their decorated trees to the Waterpark where the trees were on display throughout the lobby – beginning during the Dec. 7 Lighting of the Trees ceremony – until Dec. 16 when the auction ended.

Festival of Trees 2019 raised $1,375 and Andahwod received the check on Jan. 31, 2020.

The donation from the Festival of Trees is a generous gesture from the SEWPH and community who supported this event,” said Sheligh Jackson, interim senior assisted living administrator for Andahwod. “The funds will be used for Tribal elder activities and/or daytrips. Some of the activities that are in the planning stages are: a meal at Yoder’s Countryside Dinners, Mother’s and Father’s Day celebration and a casino daytrip.”

Tribal Elder Joseph Sowmick serves as chair of the Elders Advisory Board, and said he “appreciates the efforts of Tribal departments who help with donations.”

Sowmick continued, “We want everyone to experience what we do at Andahwod, and a great number of our activities are open to the community.”
