"Building Connected Communities" sexual assault awareness walk held at Island Park

NATALIE SHATTUCK

Editor

To recognize Sexual Assault Awareness Month in April, Behavioral Health Victim Services, Victims of Crime Program and R.I.S.E. Advocacy, Inc. held the inaugural "Building Connected Communities;" a sexual assault awareness walk on Saturday, April 13.

The event, held at the south shelter of Island Park in Mount Pleasant, began at 2 p.m. Crafts, activities and informational booths were available prior to the walk.

Jalene Lewis, victim services coordinator for Behavioral Health, provided a welcome for the estimated 131 participants in attendance.

"Building Connected Communities' helps us reduce the likelihood of sexual abuse, assault, and harassment in our communities," Lewis said. "Any space where people come together is a community, whether in neighborhoods, workplaces, campuses, organizations, or even online spaces. We are all a part of a community, often many, even when we may feel disconnected or apart from them."

Beth Nesbitt, McLaren Central Michigan SANE program coordinator, also provided a welcome, shared statistics and discussed why this event is important for the community.

The event was blessed – as Nesbitt was speaking, an eagle was spotted soaring over the crowd.

The walk entailed a one-mile trek throughout Island Park. Along the route, booths were set up, as well as signs containing statistics.

Some of the stats or information along the route read: "85% of sexual assault crimes are committed by someone the survivor knows" (Campus Sexual Assault State of Michigan).

"Sexual assault is never the victim's fault. Sexual assault is caused by a perpetrator who chooses to harm another person."

"On average, American Indians ages 12 and older experience 5,900 sexual assaults per year (Sexual Violence and Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women/RAINN).

Jalene Lewis, victim services coordinator for Behavioral Health, provides a welcome to the estimated 131 attendees.

At the north side of the park along the walk route, Tribal Police officers were present to offer stickers and swag, and to demonstrate self-defense tactics.

"Community is powerful," Lewis said. "Community creates a sense of belonging and reminds us of how our beliefs, choices, and actions impact one another."

Lewis continued, "At the center of 'Building Connected Communities' is ensuring our communities are safe, inclusive, and equitable. Racism, sexism, classism, heterosexism, ageism, ableism, and other forms of oppression contribute to higher rates of sexual harassment, assault, and abuse. We must address all abuses of power to prevent sexual violence – in our relationships, communities, and society."

Lewis shared she hopes the walk becomes an annual event.

CORRECTION:

Several of last month's quotes in the "U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Michigan speak about the visit" on page 12 were copied incorrectly. The correct quotes are below.*

Keith Stotts, U.S. probation officer Eastern District of Michigan

"...I was impressed with learning about how the Tribal Court has worked to incorporate evidence- based practices along with traditional teachings as a way to build members up. It was very powerful to see Tribal Court officials sitting in a circle with the participant to encourage positive change and connecting with their culture. I made a lot of great connections and I will definitely reach out in the future and offer the same if I can ever be of assistance."

Jessica Laguerre, U.S. law clerk to Magistrate Judge Patricia T. Morris Eastern District of Michigan

..Witnessing the healing ceremony afforded me the opportunity to see the Court's commitment to helping an individual in need and reminded me of the human element present in all the cases brought before the justice system. Attending the ceremony reminded me that it is important that we never lose sight of this, and always remember the ultimate purpose of our roles..."

Tracey Klich, project administrator for Healing to Wellness Court

"Collaboration efforts are an important component between the Federal government and Tribal governments to help those who struggle with substance use disorders. Federal government officials witnessed our first court review hearing with our Adult Expansion grant today. Knowing the federal government officials were there watching how the Chief Judge Michelle Horn and the AHTW staff sat in a circle with the first participant was humbling. Sitting in a circle provides a sense of connectedness, compassion and empathy for all who are involved. It is imperative we are aware of the resources available to us and the relationships we have developed to acknowledge and help those who are in need."

Thomas Foster completes two-year SECR Facilities Heavy Equipment Apprentice Program

NATALIE SHATTUCK

Editor

Tribal Member Thomas Foster has successfully completed the two-year Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort Facilities Apprentice Program as of March 28, 2024.

Foster, 28, is the third to ever complete the Heavy Equipment Operator Apprentice Program. The apprenticeships are open to Tribal Members only.

The heavy equipment program, consisting of 11 different modules, requires at least 3900 hours of documented training. Each module includes specific tasks identified with a matching amount of hours.

Required modules include: safety, equipment maintenance, general labor (moving/lifting, hand digging, jack hammer, concrete saws), snow removal (plow trucks, wheel loaders, dump and salt trucks), using excavators and street sweepers, obtaining a State of Michigan Class A CDL license, bull-dozer operation, wheel loader, backhoe/excavator, telehandler, dump trucks and street sweeper.

"Learning to operate each machine is such a skill on its own," Foster said, mentioning each apparatus has several different controls to learn, along with the need to always be aware of your surroundings when operating.

To obtain the Class A CDL license, Thomas was enrolled in trucking school for three weeks through Mid Michigan College.

"He's the first apprentice we've had that's ever got a Class A CDL this quickly," said John Curns, facilities manager. "He's excelled in everything he's done."

After completing the apprenticeship, Foster is required to stay with the Tribe for one year. Foster is currently serving as heavy equipment operator for SECR Facilities.

Steven Jablonski, director of facilities, said the apprenticeships aren't necessarily focused on keeping the Tribal Members within the department. Instead, it's about helping them develop career paths; wherever that may lead.

"The program is meant to provide opportunities, teach them, give them a career path," Jablonski said.

Foster said he enjoys coming to work and "loves the job more each day."

"It's allowing me to not only give back to our community but to meet more people than I've met in my life that are a part of my community," Foster said. "It's given me absolutely, total gratification coming to work every day with my boots and hat on."

His favorite part? Operating the excavator, which he also found the most challenging to learn.

"The most fun I had with the excavator was when you're completely in the dirt," he Department. Foster is the third to ever complete the Heavy said. "You're just in the dirt; moving it, digging it, stacking it, piling it up... It was a struggle learning the controls and certain skills when it comes to certain maneuvers."

Brian Thomas, heavy equipment supervisor, said he could tell right away that Foster had "the drive" it takes to be in this program.

"He was excited to get in different pieces of equipment, and you could see him light up, in the excavator; getting the feel of the controls, rolling the bucket," Thomas said. "You could see the minute that he got it (that it clicked)... he's done an awesome job... he's a fast learner, he's cautious, he's safe, and that's all we can ask for."

In addition to heavy equipment, SECR Facilities apprenticeships are also available for carpentry, electricians and plumbers. Jablonski said the department "has no problem finding Members to fill those roles" and mentioned there is a lot of interest in working in trades within the Tribal community.

Curns said a big achievement for their department is that the apprentice graduates talk to other Tribal Members and tell them of the positive experience they had in the program, which helps pique the interest of other Members.

from eclipses solar Anishinaabe about the perspective Learn

WISCONSIN DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION

(Miigwech to David O'Connor, DPI's American Indian Studies consultant, for his guidance and support in creating this article.)

Total solar eclipses are relatively rare, but partial solar eclipses are relatively common. People belonging to the Anishinaabe (also known Chippewa or Ojibwe) nations of Wisconsin and Great Lakes region have various stories and legends about eclipses. These stories are not just stories – they are representations of a worldview where celestial bodies (the planets, moon, sun, and stars) interact with the world, human lives, and even in concepts of afterlife and rebirth.

Photograph of the eclipse stages

Transcript of Anishinaabe solar eclipse story

The following story being shared and told comes from multiple communities in Canada from the east coast and central Canada including the Inu, the Ojibwe, and the Cree and others. It goes:

In the old days, people were not the chiefs and did not hunt animals. Animals were the chiefs and hunted people. They killed everyone except for one girl and her little brother. The boy learned to hunt snowbirds and squirrels with a bow and arrow. He became such a good hunter that he started catching bigger prey.

One day, he felt like something was following him. His skin became heated, and it felt like he was burned. His sister helped him fashion a snare and he set it along a melted path in the snow to catch whatever had burned him. It was the sun's path. The next day, as the sun rose, it got caught in the snare and darkness followed.

The animals were afraid but amazed by the void. They sent the biggest and most fearsome animal to try to free the sun. The caribou and the moose went first, but it was too hot. The hunting birds flew, but the fire burned their feathers.

A tiny mouse (who in those days was as big as a mountain) was the one that chewed through the snare, freeing the sun. But meanwhile, the intense heat of the sun shrunk him down to his present day size we know today.

Since that time, the people have been hunting on the land and the sun and the moon follow their cycles. The little boy is Tcikabis, and he's known as the man on the moon.

This story is highly related to annular eclipses during which a line of light around the moon will be visible. So that is the snare and the moon is catching it.

Another story goes: For the Ojibwe people and nations of the Great Lakes, the onset of total eclipse represented an extinguished sun. To prevent permanent darkness, they proceeded to fire flaming arrows at the darkened sun in an attempt to rekindle it.

Some stories say the sun was like a campfire that had gone out. Instead of hiding or banging drums (like in other Indigenous traditions), the Ojibwe fired arrows aimed at the sun.

Eventually, one of the arrows would launch high enough to reignite the sun. Human intervention was required to return the sun to its regular strength.

Another story: "A solar eclipse is happening today," Courchene, Dave Anishinabe Nation, Eagle Clan, known as Nii Gaani Aki Inini (Leading Earth Man) in a statement from Turtle Lodge. "The fire of the sun is eclipsed by the darkness of humanity. Darkness may arrive for a time, but the light — the fire of the sun will always return. The eclipse is an intimate union between sun and moon. The Grandfather Sun and Grandmother Moon are in a sacred union, giving birth to New Life on Earth."

Headliner Jeffrey Osborne, opening act Freddie Jackson perform '70s, '80s soulful R&B

NATALIE SHATTUCK

Editor

It was an evening full of '70s and '80s soulful R&B hits as Jeffrey Osborne and Freddie Jackson graced the Soaring Eagle stage on Saturday, April 6.

Opening the show, Freddie Jackson, 67, performed a onehour set. Jackson wore his best attire; sparkling from head-totoe in a sequin jacket and sparkling shoes.

Jackson's emotive voice delivered his passionate lyrics.

His platinum-selling debut album introduced the no. 1 R&B hit "Rock Me Tonight (For Old Time's Sake)."

In 1988, Jackson released "Don't Let Love Slip Away," which featured the number one hits "Hey Lover," "Nice 'N' Slow" and "Crazy (For Me)."

His additional number one hits on the U.S. R&B charts included: "You Are My Lady," "A Little Bit More," "Tasty Love," "Have You Ever Loved Somebody," "Jam Tonight," "Love Me Down" and "Do Me Again."

Headliner Jeffrey Osborne, a singer-songwriter, musician and lyrist, turned the Entertainment Hall into a party. He made his grand entrance at the back of the venue; walking through the crowd (and taking his time) to get to the stage. The audience was thrilled and on their feet in hopes to spot him in the crowd and to dance along to "We Party Hearty."

Osborne's 75-minute set portrayed his great showmanship. The 76-year-old has the energy of a 20-year-old. He can still belt out the tunes with his enduring, strong vocals.

Osborne shared with the audience it was his first time at Soaring Eagle. He thanked the audience for coming out and promised to do as many hits as he could within his time frame.

"I Really Don't Need No Light," "We're Going All the Way" and "Crazy 'Bout Cha" were just some of his many hits performed.

From 1970 until 1981 he was the drummer and lead singer of the R&B/soul group L.T.D.

"Then I became a solo artist and the Lord placed me in the hands of this incredible human being by the name of Mr. George Duke," Osborne said, mentioning Duke was one of the "most incredible human beings, singers and producers he's ever met."

Duke produced all of Osborne's hit records as a solo artist.

"When he passed away a few years back, I vowed to never do another show without acknowledging the great George Duke," Osborne said before performing the hit song Duke produced, "On the Wings of Love," followed by "Reach For It," written by Duke.

Not yet having enough audience interaction, Osborne again walked around in the audience while singing.

During "You Should Be Mine (The Woo Woo Song)," he took volunteers from the audience to sing solos or to "woo woo." A microphone was brought to them by one of Osborne's crew members. Three women were selected and two men, and to the audience's delight, each of them could carry a tune.

Judging by the audience applause at the end of the evening, Osborne brought the house down.

Three Dog Night brings a little "Joy to the World" and to Soaring Eagle on March 23

NATALIE SHATTUCK

Bringing a little "Joy to the World" and to Soaring Eagle, American rock band Three Dog Night performed in the Entertainment Hall on Saturday, March 23.

Three Dog Night performed an 85-minute show beginning at 8 p.m. The band began the show with "The Family of Man," "Black and White," "Never Been to Spain" and "Shambala."

According to the band's website, in the years 1969 through 1974, no other group achieved more top 10 hits, moved more records or sold more concert tickets than Three Dog Night (threedognight.com).

Current Three Dog Night members include: band Michael Allsup (guitar), Pat Bautz (drums), Danny Hutton (founder/lead vocals/guitar), Paul Kingery (bass/vocals), David Morgan (vocals) and Three Dog Night's founder, lead vocalist and guitarist, Danny Hutton, performs in the Soaring Eagle Entertainment Hall on Saturday, March 23.

Hutton said he "messed up his shoulder" but he'll "be fine in a couple weeks." As he normally plays guitar, the guitar tech filled in for him that evening.

Three Dog Night has had 21 consecutive Top 40 hits; including three no. 1 singles, Howard Laravea (keyboards). 11 Top 10 singles, 18 straight called 911. He said laughing, With his arm in a sling, Top 20 hits, seven million-selling singles and 12 straight RIAA Certified Gold LPs (threedognight.com).

> "We're going to do a little song for all the nature lovers in the audience," Hutton said prior to the band performing "Out in the Country."

The band continued on with "Easy to Be Hard," "Play Something Sweet (Brickyard Blues)," "One" and "Let Me Serenade You."

Vocalist David Morgan took some time to address the audience. He discussed aging and said, "Life is short" but others would "trade their pain and ailments for his." And for that, he said, he can't complain.

Morgan caused laughter when he shared a while back, he had hit a strenuous high

"An Old Fashioned Love Song," "Sure as I'm Sittin' Here," "Liar" and "Mama Told Me Not to Come" were also performed that evening.

The song "Celebrate" was performed, followed by a keyboard solo and musical note and his "smart" watch backing into the next song, "Eli's Coming."

> "This song goes out for children around the world," Hutton said before "Prayer of the Children." The a cappella performance earned a standing ovation.

> The audience remained standing for the hit song "Joy to the World," which concluded the evening.

Grand Funk Railroad, Foghat treat Soaring Eagle to the magic of '70s rock

MATTHEW WRIGHT

Staff Writer

The Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort hosted Grand Funk Railroad and Foghat on Saturday, April 13. The bands brought all of the sights, sounds, and excitement of '70s era rock and roll to the Entertainment Hall stage.

Grand Funk Railroad was formed in 1969 in Flint, Mich. The band's name is a play-on-words of the Grand Trunk Western Railroad, which runs through their hometown. Grand Funk gained a huge following during the '70s, while releasing six platinum and seven gold-certified albums during the decade.

Grand Funk began with "Rock 'n Roll Soul," followed by "Footstompin' Music," "Shinin' On" and "Heartbreaker."

Next up was the beloved party song, and No. 1 hit single, "The Loco-Motion." This was followed by "Walk Like a Man" and "Sky High."

A highlight of the night saw the band giving a rock-infused rendition of "The Star-Spangled Banner"

The band also treated audience members to several cover songs including 38 Special's "Second Chance," The Animals' "Inside Looking Out" and Soul

Brothers Six's "Some Kind of Wonderful."

To close out the night, Grand Funk performed "I'm Your Captain (Closer to Home)" and their No. 1 hit single "We're an American Band."

Opening the night was English rock band Foghat.

Next up was the bluesy, rock hit "Black Days and Blue Nights," followed by "Stone Blue" and "It Hurts Me Too."

The band also performed "Drivin' On," "Home in My Hand" and "Fool for the City."

Foghat ended with a trio of hits: "I Just Want to Make Love to You," "Play That Funky Music" and "Slow Ride."

Rock legends Warrant and Lita Ford brought back the '80s during the Friday, March 29 show at the Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort.

Formed in 1989 on the Sunset

Strip of Hollywood, Calif., the band Warrant quickly hit the spotlight with multi-platinum selling, chart topping success.

Warrant opened their set with "Sure Feels Good to Me," "Love in Stereo," "Bed of Roses" and "You're the Only Hell Your Mama Ever Raised."

Next up was the power ballad "I Saw Red," followed by "Big Talk" and "Mr. Rainmaker."

The hits continued with "Blind Faith," "The Hole in My Wall," "Down Boys," "D.R.F.S.R.," "Sometimes She Cries" and "Louder Harder Faster."

Warrant closed the night with the feel-good hit "Heaven," followed by "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and the racy lyrics of "Cherry Pie."

Taking to the stage before Warrant was rock guitarist and vocalist Lita Ford.

Ford gained fame while playing with The Runaways in the late '70s. She began her solo career with her debut 1983 album "Out for Blood."

Ford began with her hit songs "Gotta Let Go," "Larger Than Life" and "Relentless."

Fans were treated to many classics that night, including "Hungry," "Cherry Bomb," "Playin' With Fire" and "Back to the Cave."

Tribal Community

Editorial: Sexual abuse survivors - We are wired differently and permanently

KEVIN CHAMBERLAIN

Contributing Writer

(Author's note: Several months ago, I was inspired by another Tribal Member who spoke of Boarding School trauma. Her courage helped me find the courage to say something as well. This is not an easy topic, so please understand, this community may not be ready for this discussion. Personally, I feel the time is now. I challenge you to join me.)

Having lived in and around this community, it became evident to me (by the mid '80s) that many in my community were victims of sexual abuse in one form or another. Incest, molestation, rape (or all of the above); they were commonplace. I learned quickly that this very unusual, high-level of sexual activity was simply normal here.

Sadly, many suffered much harsher traumas that included violence and brutality. Now add to this the emotional and spiritual scars that come with the abuse and you have a very broken, fragile community.

For many of us, it was more of a game that rarely had anything to do with actually having sex. And while still abuse, I do consider myself one of the lucky ones as I was never raped or sexually brutalized. Even if there's such a thing as "lucky" with abuse, it must be said that it did still scar me for life.

For me, this game of sexualizing nearly everything was just the way of life I was exposed to. But obviously, sex isn't supposed to be a game. Sex should be about love for your partner/spouse but this, this had nothing to do with love. This "game" was just something you did with either immediate family, neighbors, extended cousins or all of the above. I know that may sound sick to many but it doesn't make it any less real for us.

But how and why? Well, through recent testimony and healing ceremonies, we now know that years of trauma within our Native community were a direct result of the brutal conditions that our grandparents' generation had to endure in central Michigan's boarding school (one of the largest in the North America). It is a very sad topic that is only now starting to come to the light across much of North America. Many were forever affected by several forms of abuse and that abuse trickled down to most everyone in our small community.

I couldn't possibly know the full extent of how the sexual trauma affected my friends, family and neighbors but I'm quite confident that the damage runs deep. I know this to be true from serious conversations I've had with multiple community members, as well as with my late father. He was a victim as a child himself, and no, I won't go into details or divulge names regarding but I do know that it severely scarred him. No, he did not sexually abuse me.

I do not want this message to be about outing individuals; I want it to be about healing because in many ways, the aftermath, the trauma, still plagues much of our community.

It is a dark source of deep shame for many and I have witnessed and felt it firsthand. Shame so dark and deep that I believe it lies at the root of much of our generational substance abuse and possibly a strong factor in the current suicidal activity we now witness.

No, we'll never be sexually normal. For me, years of therapy and spiritual ceremony have helped me find my voice and I believe it is time to help others find theirs. That doesn't make me perfect nor will I ever be "normal," sexually. I can still act out in many ways and be sexually inappropriate. I'm not proud of that but it does need to be said.

But I am proud to say that I have not passed this demon to my children and their children. Still, historically, I sexualized much of my adult relationships. I've always struggled to keep sexual thoughts, activities and words out of those relationships. Add alcohol to this and "the game" only becomes magnified.

Those who are most like me (who have similar traumas) have the easiest time around me because they get it.

Those who are not like me? Well, some probably think I'm sick in the head and yes, that may be a fair assumption, but I don't think I am sick in the head. To me, that's not fair. I/we didn't ask for this. I didn't seek it out... It was slowly, quietly nurtured into my life as being "normal." Sadly, I have ruined many relationships because of this demon and that breaks my heart. Those not sexually abused may never understand this.

Pain, shame, regret... I live with it.

I'm quite sure there are many reading this who can relate; that's why I'm writing it. Sadly, some reading it are likely victims of much more brutal traumas. But talking about it, that's how we heal. No, it is not easy to talk about but it is most definitely the key to breaking the cycle and finding inner peace.

Today, that little child being molested will have a much better chance of breaking the cycle too if he/she can talk about it. Doing nothing only creates and promotes further trauma. I came from the era of, "Hush, we don't talk about that" and undoubtedly, that is a foolish way to handle this because it simply does not deal with it, at all.

You are not alone. Your normal may not be the accepted normal but it is your journey. I encourage you to seek healing and utilize traditional ceremony. Specifically, go to The Hill and fast. My two journeys "on The Hill" changed my life.

I believe in the power of God/Creator. Seek him out in whatever way you know to because you do not have to live alone and in shame.

It is our responsibility to make this community, this Earth better for future generations. Keeping quiet about generational trauma serves nobody and it certainly will not help our children. Isn't it time we start to talk?

Annual HUD income limits for affordable housing programs in Arenac and Isabella counties

ROSALIE MALONEY

SCIT Housing Manager

The Housing Department operates a total of 52 affordable rental units: 43 in Mount Pleasant and nine in Standish. Most are single-family detached homes, several are duplex units with garages.

There are five one-bedroom units, 17 two-bedroom units, 24 three-bedroom units, and six four-bedroom units currently in the inventory.

SCIT Housing is fully funded through an annual, recurring federal grant dispersed through the U.S.

Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). The Housing Department does not receive any SCIT funding. Annually, around mid-April, HUD publishes income limits setting the top income threshold for eligibility.

Under this HUD-assisted program, the rents are based on a sliding scale according to household size and family income. For example, using the 2024 chart, a household of four with total annual income of $63,700 or less would be eligible to participate in the program. A household of four earning more than $63,700 would not be eligible.

By law, the rent may not be more than 30 percent of total household income.

The application process does take time and there is a wait list.

The target group for this federally-funded program is low-income Native American households. Applicants must be members of Native tribes recognized by the U.S. Government as such, and they must have a source of regular, recurring income to be eligible.

For more information on eligibility and the application process you may contact: Miranda Pelcher-Miley (989) 775-4588, MiPelcher@sagchip.org.

Native households whose income falls within these limits, are eligible for HUD assisted rental units.

Consequently, the extremely low income limits may equal the very low (50%) income limits. Income Limit areas are bases on FY 2024 Fair Market Rent (FMR) areas.
