Spirits Rising

Joe Reilly, Allison Radell

Joe Reilly is a singer, songwriter, and educator from Ann Arbor who writes songs from his heart. Joe's songs are playful, clever, engaging, joyful, and always have something meaningful to say. The core of his message is an invitation to heal our relationships with our selves, with each other, and with the earth. Joe uses his music to bring people together and build community across lines of race, class, gender, ethnicity, religion, age, and nationality.

Joe is Italian, Irish, and Native American (Cherokee) and was raised in Kalamazoo, Michigan in a creative household by musical parents who encouraged him to find his own voice. Joe loves to inspire others to do the same and to water seeds of compassion, joy, wisdom, and peace in our collective consciousness through the sharing of his music.

Joe has recorded seven albums of his music, including two children's albums of environmental songs, Children of the Earth (2007) and Let's Go Outside (2011). In 2012 Joe recorded an album of traditional and contemporary Native American songs with youth from the Dream Seekers youth program at American Indian Health and Family Services in Detroit. Joe's most recent album is Greyhound Bus Tour, released in May 2013 on the Earthwork Music label.

Allison Radell is an inspiring and creative pianist, singer, and songwriter. She has studied classical and jazz piano and enjoys playing a variety of genres. She performs with a jazz trio, a rock band, as a solo artist, and as a duo with Joe Reilly. In addition to performing, Allison also teaches piano and hopes to one day open her own music school. Allison (Powhatan) is also a fancy shawl pow wow dancer, and enjoys dancing for her ancestors and elders in the sacred circle, remembering the contributions they have made to her life. She is currently recording her first album of original songs.
