CIRCLE OF INDIGENOUS ARTS

There is always much to see, learn, experience and own from the Circle of Indigenous Arts. There's been a buzz of activity throughout the center as visitors travel between booths of incredibly beautiful art pieces and wonderfully talented artists. Paintings, jewelry, pottery, cloth items, beadwork, basketry, decorated gourds, copperwork and more blended with storytelling, song, music, dance and crafts to create an excellent event.

A Wishing Tree is in the lobby to collect all your wishes. This is a community project in partnership with ARThrive of CMU that was initiated by Japanese artist Yoko One to promote global peace. 12 trees have been distributed to collect wishes and will be shown in an art installation exhibited at the CMU library. If you would like to add your wish, the tree will be here thru Saturday, November 24, 2018. Just write your wish on a tag and place it on the tree.

Check the Ziibiwing Facebook for more photos from the Circle of Indigenous Arts, including the competition winners who will be awarded Saturday, November 17, 2018.

Current and prior students and teacher assistants from the Anishinabe Performance Circle were on the agenda for performances on November 16 & 17 at the Circle of Indigenous Arts event.

Baashkadodin-Giizis (Moon of the Freezing Ground)

Miigwetch (Thank you) to PNC BANK who sponsored this event along with the Saginaw Chippewa Tribal College, and the Saginaw Chippewa Tribal Libraries

Miigwetch (Thank you) to Dr. Margaret Noodin (R) shown above with Ziibiwing's Assistant Director, Judy Pamp. Dr. Noodin is an author, poet, professor and Anishinaabemowin language teacher among her many other accomplishments. She shared songs and teachings on Friday, November 16 at the Circle of Indigenous Arts event. She had earlier visited the Saginaw Chippewa Academy. Some of her songs in Anishinaabemowin can be found at www.ojibwe.net

Gerard Sagassige is a member of the Curve Lake First Nation. He has been a teacher of the language, the culture and the spirit of the Anishinaabek in workshops and camps for over 30 years. He was one of three presenters here at Ziiibwing in September for the Anishinaabemowin Symposium event put on by the SCIT Anishinaabe Language Revitalization Department. We are pleased to have him teach at Ziiibwing and at Seventh Generation.
