SCTC president named Honoree of the Year by American Indian College Fund

AMERICAN INDIAN COLLEGE FUND

DENVER, March 11 – The American Indian College Fund selected Carla Sineway, president of Saginaw Chippewa Tribal College, as its 2024-2025 Tribal College President Honoree of the Year.

This award is granted to a distinguished individual who made a positive and lasting impact on the tribal college movement.

Sineway is a member of the Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe and has spent most of her life in her hometown of Mount Pleasant, Mich. She has worked for the Tribe for almost 40 years, starting out at as a counselor trainee when the Indian Child Welfare Act first came into play.

Sineway’s own academic journey and the path that led her to be president of a tribal college was not direct or expected. Her childhood, though largely a good one, included a stepfather who struggled with alcoholism, and Sineway dreamed of the day she turned 18 and could get away.

She made plans with two of her closest friends in high school to apply to colleges together. But no one they knew had gone to college, and they had no help in completing applications, understanding FAFSA, or registering for classes.

Carla Sineway, president of the Saginaw Chippewa Tribal College, is honored and wrapped in a Pendleton blanket for her recognition as the 2024-2025 Tribal College President Honoree of the Year by the American Indian College Fund.

Sineway was accepted to Central Michigan University but found herself lacking strong support from her family or the university. Her mother, who loved and wanted to support her, insisted she try nursing, a socially-accepted degree for women at the time.

Unprepared for living on a college campus and having learned she was not cut out for the medical field, Sineway considered pursuing a career in law enforcement. She married and had children and returned to school after working in her first social work position for her Tribe.

At first, she was still uncertain about a career and accrued 265 credits before graduating with a bachelor’s degree in sociology from CMU. She then went on to earn a master’s in counseling.

Her transition into the education field came when she applied for Tribal Education director. It was the challenge Sineway needed. She not only excelled in the role but went back to school once again, this time for a master’s in education from Capella University.

In her role as Education director, Sineway grew the Tribe’s pre-school program into a school that went through middle school and offered an alternative school option, adult education, and leadership program.

The Department of Education grew as it served as a catch-all for community needs, including running the Tribal newspaper, maintaining a library, and operating an afterschool gym program. Saginaw Chippewa Tribal College (SCTC) was born from this expansion of services.

The Tribe began offering classes and looking into accreditation. The Saginaw Chippewa Tribal College was chartered in 2000. The first president of the college asked Sineway to serve as the dean of students and curriculum in 2002.

Several college presidents would come and go over the next few years and she filled in as the interim president. One day her husband and sons asked why she did not apply for the role. Sineway admits she had doubts about her capability, but her family noted she was already doing the job. Once officially in the position, she got to work rebuilding from a staff of three to 20 full-time and 30 part-time employees today.

Graduation day is Sineway’s favorite day of the year, she said, because it fills her heart to see the students walk across the stage, especially considering the struggles they faced and the work they put in to make it.

She said that is the importance of a tribal college education: it opens a door and provides an opportunity that students might not have otherwise. She said without tribal colleges and universities, a good percentage of Native graduates would have never gone to school or had a choice in life.

“It should be a choice... A lot of people want to make it but are afraid,” Sineway said. “(Tribal colleges and universities) are here to support them through the journey and let them know we’ve been there too.”

Sineway said the SCTC staff are like her extended family, as it was often coworkers who encouraged and supported her academic journey and career.

In these uncertain political times, she is encouraged by what she knows of her staff.

“We made it through (COVID) and will make it through this. We always do,” she said. “Being supportive to one another is really important.”

As the American Indian College Fund named SCTC President Carla Sineway the 2024-2025 Tribal College and University President Honoree of the Year, on Tuesday, April 18, Sineway was formally recognized for this achievement at SCTC. Current students, alumni, faculty, and community members celebrated her contributions.

At the event, Sub-Chief Luke Sprague presented the award and highlighted her journey, emphasizing the perseverance that led her to this recognition.

When Sineway accepted her award, she reflected on her journey and credited her success to the dedicated team she works with.

CMDHD hosts Medication Take Back event with Isabella Substance Awareness Coalition

CENTRAL MICHIGAN DISTRICT HEALTH DEPARTMENT

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich., March 25 – Central Michigan District Health Department and the Isabella Substance Awareness Coalition are hosting a Medication Take Back event on Thursday, April 3, from 1 to 4 p.m. at CMDHD’s office at 2012 E. Preston St., Mount Pleasant.

Community members can drop off unwanted or expired medications for safe disposal.

The Coalition, which includes local organizations, works to keep Isabella County safe and healthy by educating the public on substance use risks and promoting prevention.

“Properly disposing of medications helps prevent accidental poisoning, misuse, and environmental harm,” said Anna Reetz, CMDHD community health supervisor. “It also keeps homes safer and supports community well-being.”

This event supports National Prescription Drug Take Back Day, a Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) initiative that takes place on April 26.

In October 2024, Americans turned in 314 tons of medication at 4,644 locations. Find a nearby year-round drop-off site at DEATakeBack.com.

The FDA also provides safe disposal tips at fda.gov/consumers/consumer-updates/where-and-how-dispose-unused-medicines.

CMDHD also offers harm reduction services through Exchange Central, a syringe service program that helps prevent the spread of diseases from sharing needles. It provides sterile supplies, Narcan, sharps containers, and free HIV and hepatitis C testing.

Narcan training is also available.

Syringe service programs are legal, and participants are protected from paraphernalia laws. Visit cmdhd.org/exchange-central for more information.

Brenden James Lennon

October 12, 1986 – February 22, 2025

Brenden James Lennon passed away unexpectedly on Feb. 22, 2025, at McLaren Bay City. He was born in Midland, Mich., on Oct. 12, 1986. He will be greatly missed by all who knew him, from his big smile and personality to his love of cinema and reciting his favorite lines.

Brenden (Bren) graduated from R.H. Dow High School and went on to earn a bachelor's degree in outdoor recreation from Central Michigan University. He loved the water and spent his career teaching others to love it, too.

Bren emphasized safety and first aid. He instilled those values in all those who worked with him in Colorado, Florida, and Pennsylvania, and his most recent position as aquatics manager at the Soaring Eagle Waterpark.

Bren enjoyed the outdoors through rustic camping, hiking, ice climbing in the Upper Peninsula, mountain biking, kayaking and paddle-boarding.

Consistent with Brenden's "safety first" mindset, he was also a wilderness first responder, making sure to keep everyone he was with safe. One of his favorite times of the year was his annual family vacation to Higgins Lake. When the rest of the family was sleeping in the camper, he insisted on pitching a tent.

Brenden leaves behind his parents, Tom and Maggie Lennon; and his girlfriend, Sarah Newlin.

He is also remembered by his siblings: Kristin (Trevor) Oplinger, Michael (Rhown) Lennon, and Daneille (David) Schrock. His nephews: Patrick Schrock, Andrew Schrock, Owen Oplinger and Thomas Schrock will always remember Uncle Brenden for his patience, guidance, and the love he gave them over the years.

Bonnie Sprague, Bren's manager and good friend, sponsored a memorial service at the Soaring Eagle Waterpark on Wednesday March 12, from 1 to 3 p.m.

A celebration of life was held Sunday, March 16, at 2 p.m. at the Seventh Generation Elijah Elk Culture Center.

In loving memory of Cree Summer

You found eternal peace and happiness in Heaven. The pain of losing you may never fully fade, but we hold on to the cherished memories we made knowing that one day we'll be reunited. Your love lives on in the hearts of all who knew you and your strength continues to inspire us. As we remember you today, our hearts are filled with gratitude for the kindness and laughter you brought into our lives. Happy Birthday in heaven Cree Summer. We honor your memory with love and the beautiful moments we shared together. ♥ ♥

4/9/1990 – 10/18/2023

On behalf of my daughter, Cree

I would like to express my deepest gratitude to community members, extended family, local agencies and the Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe. Please forgive me, I must apologize for this late message. It is long overdue. I was overwhelmed by the love, kindness and support our family received during the most difficult and painful time of our lives. It will be two years this Oct. 18 since we lost Cree. Adjusting to life without her is slow and ongoing. It is a process of healing. I thank you all for being part of it.

Sincerely, Tracy

Ogitchedaw make a stand along other Michigan veterans to protest federal executive orders

JOSEPH V. SOWMICK

Public Relations Manager

On March 14, the Anishinabe Ogitchedaw Veteran and Warrior Society took a stand at Michigan States Capitol in Lansing with other Michigan veterans to protest recent federal executive orders coming from the Trump administration.

According to a March 13 CNN article, U.S. District Judge William Alsup has ordered half a dozen federal agencies to “immediately” reinstate probationary employees fired last month as part of the Trump administration’s effort to rapidly shrink the federal workforce.

The article stated, “The preliminary injunction issued requires the departments of Veterans Affairs, Agriculture, Defense, Energy, Interior and Treasury to rehire the employees. The judge said that he might extend the order to cover other federal agencies at a later time.”

Ogitchedaw Okima I Tony Carmona led the entourage on the Capitol steps that included fellow veterans David Perez Sr., Minnie Martin, Rae Houston and honorary Ogitchedaw member Paul Walker.

The veterans brought the Ogitchedaw healing staff, Saginaw Chippewa flag along with the POW and Air Force flag. The Ogitchedaw also shared the western door medicine white sage with appreciative fellow veterans in a healing smudge ceremony.

“... I would like to know what happened to giving people two weeks’ notice when they are being released from a job? We are here specifically to show our disdain for these executive orders that affect veterans services and coming down from above to lay off so many people,” Carmona while at the Capitol. “Are you going to tell me out of 83,000 people, that all of them aren’t doing their job and they are all worthless? I don’t think so, and a lot of people here agree and we got to do something about it.”

On March 11, Congressman John Moolenaar and Congresswoman Debbie Dingell (D-MI) reintroduced bipartisan legislation that would require the Veterans Affairs Department to ensure veterans in rural areas have reliable access to patient advocates to receive better care.

“Our nation’s veterans deserve the best possible service from the VA. Unfortunately, veterans know receiving care from the VA often consists of time-consuming paperwork, fighting through layers of red tape, and lengthy appeals,” Moolenaar said. “This is especially true for Michigan veterans in rural communities, where the nearest VA clinic may be hundreds of miles away. Patient advocates are an asset for veterans to work through the bureaucracy, and improve accountability in the VA.”

According to Carmona, “The director of the VA just came out with a video for all the veterans to look at and said everything is going to be alright and ok, but they are going to cut back and get rid of the veteran crisis lines.”

“There are people we know from our work in AOVWS that will be affected by this and Dr. Minnie Martin who has worked for our veterans knows this outsourcing of services will hurt Michigan veterans,” Carmona said. “A lot of those vital services that come from the VA where they go directly to the homes to help veterans won’t be happening with these cuts from the federal government on these programs. There is no way that these actions are not going to affect the health care of veterans in a negative way.”

Ogitchedaw member Minnie Martin discussed her career as a retired Saginaw, Mich. VA doctor, and said she believes the decisions being made in Washington regarding veterans is affecting the most vulnerable population.

“Our veterans not only deserve our respect but they also should be taken care of by our population. No veteran should be homeless and no veteran should be without health care and their needs should be met with a prompt and caring response,” Martin said. “And even when properly staffed, we are continuing to fall behind meeting needs of our veterans. These cuts and layoff will make an already crippled system crumble with these executive orders.”

Martin further said her heart is breaking when she hears about veterans not getting the quality care they were promised.

“This is an issue that affects families all over Michigan and the benefits our veterans are entitled to. If there is a family member or caregiver assisting a veterans with meals, shopping or activities with daily living, their reimbursement may be affected,” Martin said. “There are also other grant programs that make homes wheelchair accessible that the VA uses with other contractors that may be stalled or may lose funding altogether. As a matter of fact, these concerns affect veterans, their families and all the Michigan communities we live in.”

Honorary Ogitchedaw member Paul Walker said he stands in solidarity, not only with the Ogitchedaw, but with all the Michigan veterans at the Michigan Capitol that day.

“They signed up and went to fight for our country and put their lives on the line. I have the utmost respect for that and (this) is our chance where we let them know the Saginaw Chippewa Tribe care about the treatment of all veterans...,” Walker said at the Capitol.

With far reaching political issues like these executive orders, Walker said he is encouraged the voice of Indigenous elected officials can lead the way through their decisions.

“I like the message sent through Tribal Chief Tim Davis and our Tribal Council supporting our effort to be here (at the Capitol) and people should be aware that they believe in showing that respect for veterans’ health care,” Walker said. “We have veterans sitting on our Council right now and they support letting our voices to be heard by the elected officials here. It’s an awesome feeling being here (at the Capitol) and showing our Tribe supports veterans’ issues.”

Ogitchedaw Okima I Tony Carmona said for anyone interested in supporting veterans, he encourages them to attend the monthly Ogitchedaw meeting, held on the second Saturday of each month at 2 p.m. at the Ziibiwing Center.

Seventh Generation teaches maple syrup making to Tribal students

On March 26, Lee Ann Ruffino, cultural manager for Seventh Generation, confirms the 2025 gathering of maple syrup sap from the trees on the powwow grounds have yielded over 180 containers to date.

“The spring weather continues to be kind and while the sap is running, we can expect to produce more while we can,” Ruffino said.

Ruffino complimented Eric Sowmick (top right), cultural services representative, and other staffers as they led Wii Maajikwad students through the educational teaching of how maple syrup is gathered and made. The students and teachers will be treated to a pancake breakfast later in April.

The event is open to all Tribal Operations and Migizi employees, not just those recognized with a years of service award.

Those in attendance were treated to a meal, along with lucky prize winners announced throughout the evening.

Angel Jackson, gaming commissioner, was honored for achieving 35 years of service. Jackson began her career with the Tribe in 1983.

Louanna Bruner, director of Human Resources, read statements about the honorees throughout the evening.

“(Jackson) held several positions including receptionist, cashier, community health representative, accounting clerk, vault supervisor and case manager,” Bruner said. “In 1995, she became a gaming commissioner. In 1999, she decided it was time for a change and left Gaming to become a pharmacy technician at Nimkee Clinic. Angel eventually returned to Gaming in 2000 as the director of licensing and compliance before assuming her current role...”

Her sister, Tonya Jackson, provided a statement: “... She has inspired and helped so many within the community in different capacities. She probably doesn’t know how much she is appreciated. Her strength inspires me every day. She is always there when needed. She has overcome challenges in her life and never gave up; she just kept going and continues to do so...”

Ten recipients were recognized for achieving 30 years of service: Wendi Bovear, Fabian Cantu, Troy Chamberlain, Leigh Chippewa, Kim Howe, Richard Hubble, Mary LaFountain, Mary Pelcher, Jacqueline Reger and Alice Jo Ricketts.

Wendi Bovear, Saganing compliance officer, came to Soaring Eagle Gaming in 1993, working as a finance pool worker.

Bovear’s husband, Nick Bovear, provided a statement read by Bruner: “... You’ve worked so hard to build an amazing legacy in your profession, and it’s been such a privilege to witness your growth, and triumphs over the years. I’m so proud of everything you’ve accomplished, but more importantly, I’m proud of the wonderful person you are – someone who gives so much of herself to her work, family, and friends...”

Fabian Cantu, fire sergeant for the Saginaw Chippewa Tribal Fire Department, began his career with the Tribe in Gaming in 1991. In 1997, he became a full-time firefighter and became sergeant in 2017.

Fire Chief Fred Cantu provided the following statement, read by Bruner at the banquet: “... Fabian, your hard work and your commitment to this organization, as well as the Tribal Fire Department, doesn’t go unnoticed. Your passion as a servant to this community is truly appreciated and I wish you the best as you continue to serve your community...”

Troy Chamberlain has spent 23 years working as a security guard for Soaring Eagle before transferring to Nimkee Clinic as a custodian.

“Troy was a natural fit and soon became everyone’s friend,” Bruner said of Chamberlain.

Leigh Chippewa works as the HRIS specialist for the Human Resource Department.

Chippewa’s coworker Mary Roberts provided a statement: “.... Your hard work and determination has not been unnoticed, not only are you a dedicated coworker, you are also an amazing human being; filled with kindness, intelligence and creativity...”

Kim Howe, payroll manager, began with the Tribe in 1994 in

This year’s emcee was Mike Medawis, with Aaron Chivis as stickman and Steve Pego as pipe carrier.

Invited singers included Vito Buckanaga, Leroy Shenoskey, Zhaawon Smith, Kwake Hale, and Caden Pego.

The event was livestreamed by Rezonance Productions (Nathan Isaac).

The night started off with a community feast. After everyone was finished eating, the Round Dance kicked off with a welcoming song.

Later that evening, the K-12 Education Department held a

Employee Banquet

the finance pool before moving to the payroll department.

“Kim and her team are responsible for running payroll for every single employee with the Tribe – that includes Soaring Eagle Casino and Resort, Tribal Operations and Migizi. There’s no doubt that she is everybody’s favorite person.”

Richard Hubble, internal auditor for Gaming Commission, started his career with the Tribe as a housekeeper at Soaring Eagle in 1993. He has been in his current position since 2007.

Mary LaFountain, Saganing compliance supervisor, was hired in 1993 as a cage/vault cashier. After two years, she was promoted as finance control supervisor. She moved to Compliance in 1998, and eventually transferred to Saganing when the casino opened.

LaFountain’s son, George, provided a statement: “... My mother has always been the strongest person I have known; which she displays with the way she approaches her job... She has always been an extremely dedicated employee that takes pride in her job...”

Mary Pelcher, dean of academics for the Saginaw Chippewa Tribal College, began her career with the Tribe in 1998 as an administrative assistance in Education.

Pelcher’s daughter, Millie, provided a statement: “I am so proud of my mom for all her years of service and dedication to our community. She leads by example; she is smart and kind and strong and funny, and she inspires many every day, just by being herself...”

Jackie Reger, senior comptroller for the Accounting Department, began with the Tribe in 1994 as an accountant.

Nathan Smith, program budget analyst, provided a statement about Reger: “... I’ve been under her watch directly or indirectly since February 2003, and I can say with 100 percent certainty that I wouldn’t want it any other way. She has been the kind of leader that I would aspire to be. Almost always armed with an answer to the avalanche of questions that come her way daily, patience to explain why a particular course of action has been chosen, but never overly rigid and always willing to listen to an alternate view...”

Tribal Council Chaplain Alice Jo Ricketts was also honored with 30 years of service.

Her husband, Kevin Ricketts, provided a statement: “... She always amazes me with her strength and prayers. Thirty years of dedication to the Tribe is awesome. My wife would have done that for nothing – no money, no recognition; just love for her people. My wife has many more years of service left fulfilled with her love. She will always be available to her Saginaw Chippewa Tribe when they ask.”

Also honored that evening was employee Brendan Lennon, aquatics manager for the Soaring Eagle Waterpark. Lennon, 38, unexpectedly passed away on Feb. 22. He would have received his 10 year service award this banquet. A moment of silence was offered and his father accepted his award.

On behalf of the Human Resource Department, HR Senior Manager Mary Quigno, wished to thank everyone that attended, the Tribal departments that contributed to the banquet, and the local businesses that graciously donated prizes for the drawings.

“We had the biggest number (22) of hard working, dedicated employees receiving a 25 years of service award,” Quigno said. “We had a total of 117 employees who received a years of service recognition this year, so thank you all for your continued service to the Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe.”

Charlie

Charlie is a large male American Bulldog mix. Charlie is a cuddle bug, but is very shy when first meeting new people and prefers a slow introduction. Once he warms up, you'll have the best buddy. He loves to play in the yard and romp around after toys. You will see his fun side if you toss him a few toys!

Lakota author Jessie Taken Alive Rencountre shares her writings with local area schools

JOSEPH V. SOWMICK
Public Relations Manager

On March 5, Hunkpapa Lakota author and jingle dress dancer Jessie Taken Alive Rencountre (Standing Rock Sioux Tribe) shared her writings with local area schools.

Rencountre has published six children’s books. By combining cultural knowledge with her experiences of more than 15 years as a school counselor, she educates through storytelling, song, and dance.

The packed crowd of Ganiard Elementary students and faculty were enthralled with her presentation.

Her book “Thunder’s Hair” features a young man who is fed up with school bullies. He considers cutting his hair until his wise grandmother reminds him of the power of having long hair.

“I think one of the best experiences I can get out of this as an author is watching the kids in their beauty of being themselves. They get to experience other cultures and, in the process, they learn diversity is truly a beautiful thing,” Rencountre said. “I believe we are all born into this world and the belief we are role modeled by society is not true, like being different is bad. I want to share knowledge with the kids that we are all beautiful, regardless of the language we speak and the skin color we are.”

Rencountre said she credits her parents with inspiring her as a child to continue her writing. She said she hopes to continue on her path of storytelling.

She also said she believes a deep cultural awareness will strengthen Lakota and other Indigenous youth and may help to break the cycle of generational trauma.

“In our Hunkpapa Lakota tradition we talk about the importance of being a good relative and our mothers are considered our first teachers,” she said. “These are the values that I taught to my children and I look at my own four daughters as future leaders. One of the qualities I see as I have visited with many tribes is our common belief seen in our respect of our elders and wisdom keepers. They know so much about our ways and culture and it is a message that is worth sharing in the books I write.”

The author said in sharing her teaching, she has learned about her elders being wise and deserving respect.

“I think our spirits recognize that respect we have for the sacred fire and many ceremonies utilize that gift given to our people by the Creator,” she said. “It is universally recognized by many cultures across the world but it is certainly an excellent teacher for our indigenous people. To be around that fire and to hear the stories that are shared around it resonates with the children’s spirit.”

Alexis Gourrier, school counselor at Ganiard Elementary, said it was great to have Jessie Rencountre visit the school and read her children’s book.

“She offered our students a great message about courage and strength. It was awesome for the students to be able to learn about the culture of our Native American people,” Gourrier said. “Her book was amazing and she did a great job with our kids. We loved the messages of being a modern-day warrior as well as being courageous and standing up for ourselves and others.”

Her book tour also included Wii Maajikwad along with other Mt. Pleasant elementary schools (Fancher, Pullen, Vowles and Mary McGuire).

Rencountre said sitting around a fire and listening to stories reminds her of what happens in the classrooms where she reads to the children.

“The spirits recognize that fire and it helps calm us down and to be able to sit and hear things being shared in a good way just like we are doing with the classroom today. It is who our people were born to be: storytellers,” Rencountre said. “It is our responsibility to carry on these teachings to the young ones and thing ahead of the next seven generations. We all were once children who were taught beautiful things about our language and culture and to continue that tradition will ensure our stories will live on to the next generations.”

Fans treated to an evening of entertainment and flawless harmonies with Boyz II Men, After 7

NATALIE SHATTUCK

Editor

Seeing the R&B group Boyz II Men in concert is like watching a live magic show. Their “tricks” of flawless harmonies, choreography, swagger, and Wanya Morris’ vocal abilities really stun and capture audiences. The audience witnessed this during the group’s return to the Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort, with special guest After 7, on Saturday, March 15.

Boyz II Men – members Wanya Morris, Nathan Morris and Shawn Stockman – performed a 75-minute set, while sporting matching crisp, white attire.

The set list, full of ‘90s R&B nostalgic hits, began with “Can’t Let Her Go,” “Don’t Stop,” and “Water Runs Dry,” along with covers of 112’s “Cupid” and New Edition’s

Members of R&B groups Boyz II Men and After 7 share a moment backstage at Soaring Eagle on Saturday, March 15.

“Can You Stand the Rain.”

The vocal runs started to come to life (calm down, Wanya!) during the hit “On Bended Knee,” which was followed by “Hey Lover.”

Tony! Toni! Toné! was originally scheduled to open for Boyz II Men, but unfortunately the group’s founding member and guitarist, D’Wayne Wiggins, passed away on March 7 after privately battling bladder cancer.

Boyz II Men paid homage to Wiggins with spoken word and by performing a snippet of “Anniversary” by Tony! Toni! Toné! after each Boyz II Men member introduced himself.

Shawn Stockman told the audience there was one rule for the evening.

“One rule only: Enjoy yourselves. That’s it. Leave all your cares and problems and baby mama issues outside of this place,” Stockman said, stirring audience cheers.

After “Please Don’t Go,” “Ugh Ahh (Sequel Version)” and “Four Seasons of Loneliness,” it was time for the rock section and cover portion of the show.

The Boyz launched right into Sam Cooke’s “A Change is Gonna Come,” Lenny Kravitz’s “Are You Gonna Go My Way,” The Guess Who’s “American Woman,” Bruno Mars’ “Locked out of Heaven,” The Beatles’ “Come Together,” and Prince’s “Purple Rain.”

The night flew by and it was time to close out the evening with Boyz II Men’s biggest hits, including: “It’s So Hard to Say Goodbye to Yesterday,” “One Sweet Day,” “I’ll Make Love to You,” “End of the Road” and the upbeat, unforgettable “Motownphilly.”

Prior to Boyz II Men, R&B/soul group After 7 opened the show and performed an entertaining 60-minute set.

After 7 formed in Indianapolis in 1987.

Similar to Boyz II Men, After 7 also matched in white attire. The group began the show with “Baby I’m For Real,” “Can He Love You” and “Can’t Stop.”

The group heated up the Entertainment Hall stage and kept it warm for Boyz II Men as they ended their portion of the show with the timeless and catchy tunes, “I Care ‘Bout You,” “Nights Like This” and “Ready or Not.”

Tower of Power and War bring the funk to Soaring Eagle

MATTHEW WRIGHT

Staff Writer

The Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort hosted iconic soul-funk bands Tower of Power and War on Saturday, March 8.

Headlining the night was Tower of Power. The band brought more than five decades worth of material to the Entertainment Hall stage.

Their set began with the fan favorite “We Came to Play,” followed by “Soul With a Capital ‘S’” and “You Ought to Be Havin’ Fun.”

The funk continued with the groovy baselines of “Soul Vaccination,” “I Like Your Style” and “To Say the Least, You’re the Most.”

Next up was the chart-topping singles “You’re Still a Young Man” and “Don’t Change Horses (In the Middle of a Stream),” followed by “This Time It’s Real.”

A highlight of the night featured a performance of “Diggin’ on James Brown,” a tribute to the late artist.

To close out the night, Tower of Power performed the smooth, slow hit “So Very Hard to Go,” followed by the funky beats of “What Is Hip?/ Soul Power.”

Opening for Tower of Power was the progressive soul band, War.

The group began with “Me and Baby Brother,” “Slippin’ Into Darkness” and “The Cisco Kid.”

Next up was the hip riffs of “Spill the Wine,” followed by “Out of Sight” and “Summer.”

The crowd cheered as the opening baselines of the classic song “Low Rider” rang out.

War ended their set with a spirited performance of “Why Can’t We Be Friends?” and “All Day Music.”

Earth Day 2025 Awareness Month, theme is “Our Power, Our Planet”

KATIE HAGER

Environmental Outreach Coordinator

Earth Month and Day strive to increase awareness of environmental impacts paired with separate or collective actions to support the environment and its beautiful features. Many communities and individuals come together to clean up litter, plant trees, raise awareness, discuss problems and nature-based solutions, or reflect on their relations to land and water.

The first Earth Day was held on April 22, 1970, when activist John McConnell and Sen. Gaylord Nelson separately asked Americans to join in grassroots demonstrations to raise awareness for environmental issues and health during times of elevated toxic drinking water, air pollution, and the effects of human impacts in the natural world and systems.

President Richard Nixon aided in creating the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) which was the catalyst for many environmental regulations and laws including the Clean Air Act, the Clean Water Act, and the Endangered Species Act.

Earth Day 2025’s theme is “Our Power, Our Planet” to create a greater understanding that our current reliance on energy is unsustainable.

Fossil fuels have historically been essential yet they pose serious threats to our environment and health. Shifting towards renewable energy will spur economic growth and increase job demand while utilizing a clean, sustainable energy source that is becoming more affordable.

According to Project Drawdown, electricity production in 2023 contributed to about 25 percent of greenhouse gas sources.

An innovative electricity sector can reduce carbon emissions and improve human health and equity while providing many benefits to mitigate climate change through renewable energy and energy efficiency.

These focuses and actions can include but are not limited to: adopting renewable solutions such as biomass power, microgrids, concentrated solar power, distrusted energy storage, district heating, grid flexibility, wind turbines, net zero buildings, hydropower, utility-scale energy storage, waste to energy, and water distribution efficiency; innovating and developing building automation systems; building retrofitting; dynamic glass; geothermal power; green and cool roofs; high efficiency systems; insulation; LED lighting; low-flow fixtures; smart thermostats; and solar hot water.

What can you do?

Practice energy efficiency and purchase energy efficient products; turn off the lights and unplug electronics or appliances when not in use; use environmentally-safe products; use reusable bags and products; create art to advocate for the Earth; keep a nature journal; use less paper or use recycled; practice sustainable fashion;

eat green – eat locally and eat less meat when able; drive less by grouping errands and making fewer trips; keep your vehicles maintained; carpool when possible; plant native trees and vegetation; support reforestation; plant a pollinator garden; go to the park or green space; reduce, reuse, recycle, upcycle, and compost whenever possible; use less or no chemicals in the garden; conserve water; get others involved; do not use or purchase single-use items if possible; collect rainwater to water plants; complete a trash can or waste audit; reach out to local legislatures and representatives about environmental concerns and issues; promote sustainable development; keep your surroundings clean; clean up plastic or trash in your neighborhood or backyard.

Always use care and best judgment when picking up litter. Wear close-toed shoes and protective gloves or use a trash grabber for items that may be sharp. Only pick up trash or garbage that is safe to handle and can be easily disposed of or recycled. Avoid touching litter directly and do not touch your face while cleaning up.

If you do not have a trash grabber a repurposed pair of BBQ or salad tongs can work as a pickup device. If it is not clean – it cannot be recycled, meaning if it is moldy or it is not relatively clean you can throw it in the trash bag. Bring hand sanitizer if you are able and be sure to wash your hands as soon as you are finished.

Leave hazardous items such as needles, syringes, batteries, oil drums, and canisters alone as these may not be safe and have specific waste instructions and regulations.

For Earth Month, the Environmental Team is asking the community to come together to raise awareness and encourage community actions to protect, support, and clean our planet. As a Tribal community, we can strive to achieve environmental sustainability within our community, homes, workplace, and backyard.

By working together to protect Mother Earth, we keep her beautiful and healthy. In turn, she keeps us all healthy, both for our generation and the next seven generations to come.

Editorial: Another successful year for Give Kids A Smile event in February

LISA WAKEFIELD

Dental Assistant

Thank you to all those that made Give Kids A Smile a success in February. Whether it was behind-the-scenes or on the front line, all of your effort helped Nimkee Dental Clinic provide education to 402 children.

Two of our great team members, Jodi Lucas and Jennifer Powell, visited the area schools and gave an awesome presentation. Each student received a goodie bag to take home to share what they learned with their family. All the hard work and efforts of everyone involved are greatly appreciated.

Unfortunately we were unable to see the children scheduled in the clinic due to the bad weather. The office was closed for the day resulting in the rescheduling of 27 of GKAS patients.

Each year the GKAS program gets bigger and better. We are all looking forward to next year and helping all the kids in the community have a big bright smile.

EMERGING FRAUD THREATS

Artificial Intelligence (AI) is a technology that enables machines to mimic certain human-like behavior, such as speech or writing. AI, while a useful tool in some circumstances, can be exploited by bad actors to make scams more convincing.

Three terms to know

- Chatbots: A chatbot is a computer program that may use AI to simulate human conversation and could be used maliciously to obtain, store, or manipulate your personal data.
- Voice Cloning Technology: Voice cloning uses AI to mimic the voice of someone you know.
- Deepfakes: A deepfake is an authentic looking AI-generated video or image.

► Phishing Attacks: Using AI, scammers can quickly personalize phishing emails, imitate dialogue, and bypass spam filters, making it harder for individuals to distinguish between genuine and fraudulent communications.

► Family Emergency Scams: Scammers can utilize voice cloning and deepfakes to impersonate a loved one who claims they are in danger and need money.

► Romance Scams: Fraudsters can use AI technology to operate fake profiles on dating websites and social media platforms. AI-powered chatbots then simulate realistic conversation to build trust, with the goal of tricking the target into sending them money.

► Examples of AI in Frauds and Scams: It may be difficult to know if someone is using AI-technology in a scam. One thing is certain: AI makes traditional frauds and scams easier to deploy on a large scale and are all the more convincing.

► Example of a Fake Text Message: Transaction Update Your account is being debited for iPhone 13 USD $599.97. Not you? Call Amazon at (888)- ***

Tips to protect yourself

- Do not share sensitive information via phone, email, text, or social media.
- Do not transfer or send money to unknown locations.
- Consider designating a “safe word” for your family that is only shared with family members and close contacts.
- Report potential scams to the authorities and the companies involved.

Tribal youth brightened up the runway, rocking their ribbon skirts or shirts during the M'nadendan Wi "Respect That!" Indigenous Youth Fashion Show, held on Wednesday, Feb. 26.

The third annual event, in support of Teen Dating Violence Awareness Month, began at 6 p.m. in the Soaring Eagle Casino & Resort Entertainment Hall.

More than 50 youth strutted the runway – on the stage in the Entertainment Hall – with beautiful attire designed by Tribal community members.

As each youth member walked the runway, event emcee Nathan Isaac (Rezonnance Productions) read a statement they each provided, answering what respect means to them.

"My favorite part of the event was getting to hear over 50 Tribal youth explain in their words what respect in a relationship means to them as they crossed the stage," said Jalene Lewis, victim services coordinator for Behavioral Health Programs. "Getting to witness and empower the next generation, as they found a way define what a healthy, safe, and respectful relationship meant to them was an honor and it is my hope that this work in the community will be able to continue for years to come."

Prior to the modeling, Tribal Council's Christina Otto and Youth Council's Ginaajwi Pego provided a prayer, and Tribal Member Melissa Isaac spoke to the audience.

Melissa Isaac currently works for the Michigan Department of Education's Indigenous Education Initiative where she serves Indigenous students attending public schools throughout Michigan.

Isaac spoke about the Seven Grandfather Teachings, highlighting respect. She also discussed Michigan House Bill 4854, passed on Dec. 31, 2024.

House Bill 4854 of 2023 (Public Act 209 of 2024) states "indigenous individuals to wear traditional regalia and bring traditional objects in a school building" (legislature.mi.gov).

The bill now protects all of our Indigenous students and their sacred items, Isaac said.

"I cannot wait to see all of the beaded caps this graduation season, without fear that they will be taken away," she said.

The event's special guest speaker was Pisim Sb, an Anishinaabe-Nehiyaw artist, entrepreneur and model with a story of resilience. From Maskwacis Cree Nation, Pisim represents his home community and its Indigenous sovereignty through his music and advocacy.

Pisim Sb spoke of self-determination and self-awareness, and what it looks like to have a healthy relationship with one self.

Also a musical artist, Pisim Sb performed a few of his songs for the audience to enjoy.

"The incredible outpour of support and talent from over 30 tribal artists amazed me; including a few youth that were able to walk in the show as well as showcase some of their own indigenous fashion on themselves and for their peers," said Jalene Lewis, victim services coordinator for Behavioral Health Programs.

In preparation for the show, Lewis said she met with the Tribal youth to have some "positive conversations to educate them on what teen dating violence can include as well as some qualities of a healthy relationship."

A dinner was held during the event and it wrapped up with a drum and dance social.
